Taylor Wins Over Carmack

Majority In Tennessee Primary May Reach 20,000.

Has Carried All Three Divisions of State.

Many Surprises For Present United States Senator.

MEMPHIS ONLY STRONGHOLD.

Nashville, Tenn., May 12.—[Special.]—

The indications in to-day's Democratic senatorial primary point to the nomination of former Governor Robert L. Taylor by a majority of 20,000 over Senator E. W. Carmack. Taylor seems to have carried all three divisions of the State. Carmack lost Hamilton, Knox and Davidson, the liquor and labor vote in Chattanooga, Knoxville and Nashville being almost solidly against him. Nearly every county Carmack had figured on carrying went against him, several of them by considerable majorities. He surprised Taylor in only a few counties, Montgomery, Wilson and Giles coming around to Carmack on the very last days of the campaign.

Former Governor Taylor's remarkable personal popularity, his long service as Governor of the State and the rancor growing out of the so-called snap convention which nominated the then Governor, James B. Frazier, as the successor of the late William B. Bate in the United States Senate in 1905 accomplished the downfall of Senator Carmack. Six months ago Taylor would have won by three times the majority which he secured to-day, but Carmack's wonderful powers as a stump speaker, the loyalty of his friends, embracing most of the politicians, and his superb organization, had diminished Taylor's one time heavy vote immeasurably. Besides the bulk of the machine leaders, McMillin and his friends excepted, Carmack had behind him the chief anti-alcohol lights of the State, but the country people, the mechanics, the liquor forces in the city have been zealous for his opponent, and have stuck to him to the end.

Carmack's Up-hill Fight.

Under the circumstances Carmack has been forced to conduct an up-hill fight from the beginning, with his forces always realizing he was the "under dog" in the struggle. It was conceded all along by the Carmack leaders that Taylor, a native of that section, would carry east Tennessee, but Carmack hoped to overcome any majority Taylor might secure over the mountains by his vote in west Tennessee. Then if he could split even in middle Tennessee, which always had been the battle ground, the victory was his. But Taylor's method of campaigning, his jokes, his songs, and his powers as a mixer with the common people, proved irresistible. It was held by thousands of voters that Taylor had always been anxious and willing to come to the aid of the party in times of distress; that he had once left the lecture platform where he was collecting money, at the call of his party, and when his refusal to accept the gubernatorial nomination would have resulted in the election of a Republican. For these and other reasons which have been mentioned, it was felt he was entitled to the Senatorship even over a man of such popularity and brilliant attainments as Carmack.

Country Vote Light.

The weather throughout the State to-day was ideal, yet a fall vote did not come out. Many of the farmers were so behind in the fields. In the cities, towns and villages, however, there was practically a full vote. Especially is this true of Davidson, Shelby, Knox and Hamilton counties, in which are located the large cities. At every polling booth in these cities, there were large crowds of workers and they worked as if their lives depended on the result.

Sketch of the Victor.

Robert Love Taylor was born at Happy Valley, Carter county, Tennessee, July 31, 1850. He finished his education at Pennington, N. J., and was admitted to the Tennessee bar in 1878, practicing in his native town but a short while before being elected to Congress, where he served from 1879 to 1881. In 1884 he was elected for the State-at-large on the Cleveland ticket and in 1886 was elected Governor of Tennessee in 1886 after a picturesque campaign, in which his brother, Alfred A. Taylor, was his opponent. Re-elected to the governorship he served until 1891, when he took up the practice of law at Chattanooga, remaining there until 1896, meanwhile again serving as presidential elector on the Cleveland ticket in 1892. In 1897 he was once more called to the Governor's chair, retiring in 1899, since which time he has devoted his time principally to the law and field and to literary work. In

THE COUPLE ARRESTED.

Woman Apparently Ignorant of Meyer's Alleged Crime.

New York, May 12.—The Graf Waldersee was met at the dock by Deputy United States Marshal Bernard and another deputy, who at once put Meyer under arrest. He made no resistance when the handcuffs were placed on his wrists. The woman who accompanied him was registered on shipboard as his wife, but confessed to the authorities that her real name was Mrs. Vogel, of Wilkeson, in the principal of Waldeck, who had been missing since the disappearance of Meyer from that place. She came from San Francisco to Wilkeson with Meyer two years ago. The latter is a furniture dealer, thirty-one years of age, and born in Germany. TRICKS USED TO GET BUSINESS

Employee of the Standard Oil Company Talks.

Every Fraud and Device Known Used.

Competitors Had No Show to Win in Competition.

NEW LIGHT ON CORPORATION.

Chicago, May 12.—Despite the objections of the counsel for the Standard Oil Company, F. S. Hibbs, of Peoria, and for thirteen years an employee of the Standard Oil Company, was permitted to-day by the Interstate Commerce Commission to illustrate a number of tricks which the witness says were used by salesmen and agents of the Standard Oil Company.

"In testing the oil of a rival company," said Mr. Hibbs, "we used a new chimney, and the magenta in the glass makes the chimney look cloudy. For our own use we had an old chimney, with the wick perfectly dried out and not too long. We used to rub a moistened finger across the wick of the competitor, and after it burned a short time the damp spot would be reached, the light would grow dim, and there would be a sputtering. All this time our light would be burning brightly. Our wicks were trimmed so as to make a thin flame, and those of the competitor we trimmed so as to make a thick flame. The thinner the flame the whiter the light. Then we would often bend down the lower part of the burner and let air in under the chimney, which would cause the lamp to smoke. Sometimes we would fill up some of the ventilating holes around the burner with chewing gum.

"We only resorted to these tricks when a competitor was selling oil in a town and I wanted to get rid of him." The witness named five towns in Illinois where he had convinced customers that the oil of the Standard Oil Company is superior, when, as a matter of fact, it was inferior.

He said that the first tests showed the product of the Standard Oil Company to be of 44 per cent. gravity, while that of competing companies was 49 per cent.

Tricks Still In Vogue.

"Do the agents of the Standard Oil Company still practice the tactics you have mentioned in meeting competition?" asked Attorney Monett.

"Yes. They are doing it to-day," replied the witness. "They pay rebates, bribe people, cut the price, and substitute an inferior quality of oil, and, in fact, do anything necessary to get the business and put the competitor out of the way."

The witness then told of a dinner given in Peoria by C. H. Hand, manager of the Cincinnati office of the Standard Oil Company, at which the different methods of getting business were discussed. The witness said that Manager Hand related how Robert Carlyle, a salesman, had used $100 in getting a certain customer, and that it was a good investment. The money was used in bribing the employees of the firm using the oil. Another instance was cited where the engineer of a large plant was bribed by agents of the Standard Oil Company to put grit in the oil sold by a rival, so that it would ruin the machinery and the customer be compelled to buy of the Standard Oil Company.

How He Got Information.

The witness gave specific instances where he had bribed railroad employees while he was in the employ of the Standard Oil Company to get information regarding shipments made by the Royal Oil Company. He said that he paid a freight handler of the Iowa Central railroad $2 a month for a long time to get him certain information. He said the company always urged agents never to remember names or facts connected with the work of obtaining information about the business of rivals. "We were advised to bribe a man without knowing his name if possible," he said.

Attorney Monett then attempted to show that the Standard Oil Company paid less than 10 per cent. of the taxes it should pay under the law, but Commissioner Clements ruled that the commission could not properly go into that matter of the present inquiry.

The witness then detailed a plan he had used to make trouble and expense for the Standard Oil Company. He would induce a business man to give him a "fake" order for oil, and then show it later to agents of the Standard Oil Company, who would give the man a cash present in order to get him to buy oil from the Standard Oil Company. On cross-examination Attorney Miller asked:

"Are you working any of these games you have discovered, now that you are working for an independent oil concern?"

Some Schemes of His Own.

"No. I do not have to stoop to do the dirty things I learned while in the employ of the Standard Oil Company," replied the witness.

"These fake orders were orders that you never intended to fill, were they not?"

"Yes."

"You would leave them with a business man, and when the agent of the Standard Oil Company came along the man would show the fake order?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever get any of that money?"

The witness at first declined to answer the question, but the Commissioner ordered him to reply.

"I did receive some of the money, but I do not remember how much," replied the witness. "I fixed up the scheme, and then if the business man wanted to give me anything, all right. The object of the scheme was not to make money, but to cause trouble and expense for the Standard Oil Company."

"Do you practice this fake order game with your present employer?"

"I will use it any time I think it necessary."

In concluding his testimony Hibbs said that he knew of many occasions when the Standard Oil Company had sold three kinds of oil out of the same barrel at different prices.

How a Contract Was Secured.

A. C. Annett, of Springfield, Ill., was the next witness. He described a banquet held in Peoria, Ill., February 24, 1900, when P. H. Hancher, president of the Standard Oil Company, of Kentucky, addressed the agents of the Standard Oil Company. He said that Mr. Hand told of a salesman named Carlyle losing a contract for supplying oil to a large wire nail company in Kokomo, Ind., and declared that Carlyle had said that if he had $50 he could have secured the contract. The money was furnished, and in a short time the witness said, the wire nail company was compelled to close its plant because of worn-out materials and hot boxes. The contract was then given to the Standard Oil Company.

John W. Griffith, purchasing agent of the Union Pacific, declared the Galena Oil Company supplied his road with oil, and gave the figures paid for it. He said that the Galena Oil Company, and paid higher prices than are asked by independent concerns. He said in lieu of the usual guarantee given by the oil company the railroad received a rebate of $2,000 a year from the Galena Oil Company. He said that no efforts had been made in two years to get the price of independent concerns.

Railroad Got Rebate.

J. A. Whalen, purchasing agent for the Illinois Central railroad, said that his company had always purchased its oil from the Galena Oil Company, a branch of the Standard Oil Company, and paid higher prices than are asked by independent concerns. He said in lieu of the usual guarantee given by the oil company the railroad received a rebate of $2,000 a year from the Galena Oil Company. He said that no efforts had been made in two years to get the price of independent concerns.

Charles J. Smith, assistant secretary of the Illinois Railroad and Warehouse Commission, and previously agent for the Illinois Central railroad at Duquoin, Ill., was questioned at length regarding alleged discrimination in rates between Whiting, Ind., and East St. Louis in favor of the Standard Oil Company. He said he had heard that the Standard Oil Company was given a six-cent rate under the State schedule, but the traffic sheet showing this rate had never been filed with the State Commission as the law requires.

He Feared Trouble.

Manager Kellogg, of the George P. Jenks Oil Company, an independent concern, said that he never attempted to sell oil to railroads, because he feared annoyance and trouble in his business if he competed in this business with the Standard Oil Company.

ALVAH PORTLOCK TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF.

Fires Pistol Ball Into His Body Because Girl Refused To Wed Him.

Chicago, May 12.—Alvah T. Portlock, twenty-eight years of age, a resident of Knoxville, Tenn., who has been living in this city for a short time, attempted to kill himself in the office of the Northern Trust Company to-day. He fired a bullet into the left side of his chest that will probably prove fatal. While being taken to the hospital Portlock regained consciousness for a few minutes and said that he had been engaged to Miss Margaret May, an employee of the bank, and that he had shot himself because she had refused to keep her promise to marry him. Miss May, who was nearly prostrated by the act of Portlock, refused to discuss the matter.

MIND UNBALANCED.

Says Father of Young Man Who Lives At Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 12.—Alvah T. Portlock, who tried to commit suicide in Chicago, is the son of Tapley Portlock, a prominent citizen and book dealer of this city. He has been residing in Chicago nearly two years. His father, when told of the misfortune of his son, stated that his son's mind had been unbalanced for some time and that he was not surprised at the news. The young man formerly held a responsible railroad position here. Miss May, about whom Portlock is said to have shot himself, is a former Knoxville young woman. Her sister is a teacher here now.

Portlock is a brother of Clyde W. Portlock, a Wall-street, New York, attorney.

REPUBLICAN EDITORS MAY MEET IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Annual Gathering To Be Held In Washington Canceled.

Logansport, Ind., May 12.—A letter has been received in this city from William S. Capper, of Mansfield, O., president of the National Republican Editorial Association, stating that the annual meeting of the association at Washington has been canceled and an effort is being made to hold the convention at Indianapolis on June 10. Harry C. New, of Indianapolis, President Capper are arranging the details. It is expected that Vice President Fairbanks will give a reception for the delegates.

Victor In Tennessee Hot Senatorial Fight

FORMER GOV. ROBERT L. TAYLOR.

TIGER SKIN

Pays Important Part In Consular Mess.

McWade-Peirce Fight May Reach The Senate.

Fur Will Fly When Question Comes Up.

Lodge and Penrose Clash.

Washington, May 12.—[Special.]—The question as to the outcome of the McWade-Peirce tiger skin story is growing daily in interest. It is said that Secretary Root is deeply disgusted with the nasty mess that has involved the State Department and no doubt wishes the parties concerned in a warmer fight. As McWade has lost his place, and nearly everything else, he can suffer no further at the hands of Peirce, so he is content with the situation. Not so with Peirce. His ambition is to climb from his present position, at the head of the consular service, with an annual pay attachment of $4,500, to enter the diplomatic service at $10,000 per annum. So he has considerable to lose. Even at this stage of the game, it can be said that Mr. Peirce's fate rests with the President, and it remains to be seen whether Senator Lodge, who has endeavored to intervene with both the President and Secretary of State this week, in his relative's behalf, can exert sufficient influence to hold him in office.

Of course, Mr. Peirce has not yet been convicted of accepting a bribe although public and official sentiment in Congress and even in the State Department, is openly known to be decidedly against him. While Senator Lodge has his influence at the White House, and also at the Capitol, the influence of Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, who obtained Mr. McWade's position and has stood faithfully by him ever since, is not to be overlooked. Penrose, it must be remembered, is the one man in the Senate, who is keeping Barnes, the newly appointed Postmaster for Washington, from being turned down, and the President is going his all to have Barnes confirmed. If the fight goes into the Senate, as it surely will, if the President sends in the name of Peirce for Minister to Norway, there is most likely to be some rather entertaining proceedings between the friends of the accused parties.

Gen. Butler Vigorous.

That gallant and courteous gentleman from the Old Palmetto State, former Senator M. C. Butler, is in Washington. Gen. Butler has celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his birth, and he is still vigorous in mind and body. Living quietly on his plantation that borders on the residue of his days in happy serenity, occasionally making a visit to the National Capitol, where he has a multitude of friends. He is one of the few ex-Confederate officers of high rank left, but after doing a herculean part in the great strife between the States, he lived to don the uniform of a General in the army of the United States through appointment by President McKinley.

"The only matter that is now of especial interest in South Carolina," said Gen. Butler, at the Shoreham Hotel, "is the dispensary question. The best people of our State have always been opposed to this vicious, degrading and corrupting policy, and I believe it is going to be abolished. There never was a State freer from graft than was South Carolina, prior to the adoption of the dispensary law, but after the State went into the rum selling business, it was a saturnalia of stealing, graft, and corruption. It has made a bad man of every man connected with its management, and has made fortunes, although their legitimate salaries were ridiculously low.

"About half the counties in the State have already voted out the dispensary, and it looks as though the system was doomed in spite of the fight that Senator Tillman is making for its retention."

Queer Consular Reform.

"It is a queer sort of reform that the President is treating us to in the matter of the consular service," said John F. Dyson, of Chicago. "About a year ago he made a strong plea for improvement of the service, arguing that only men of good character and high attainments should be sent to look after the interests of the United States in foreign countries. On the heels of this message he named as Consul General to Zanzibar one McWade, who had been a member of the President's Rough Riders regiment. This man had no knowledge of the language of the country to which he was accredited, and one of the New York papers showed him to be thoroughly unfit in every way for the position. Furthermore, it is known that Secretary Root, while keenly desirous to get only the best men for consular positions, has little to say as to the personnel of the appointees. A card comes over from the White House with the curt order that such and such a person shall be chosen Consul at a place named. There is a big chance that the man specified is wanting in all the qualifications for the office, but he is in all probability a Rough Rider, and that is enough to make up for all other deficiencies."

"Clay, and Common Clay."

"Let us have no more talk in the Senate or in the country about this iron man in the White House. He is clay, and very common clay at that," was the closing sentence in Senator Bailey's speech to-day.

Why Not?

The steel trust reiterates its promise to Congress to furnish San Francisco with all the material it will require in the rebuilding of the city if it will not admit foreign material free of duty. Why not?

A Wonderful Record.

As made up by improved and exact processes Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, nervousness, indigestion, bringing about a perfect state of health. It cures the backache, periodical headaches, dragging down distress in the pelvic region, the pain and tenderness over the lower abdominal drain, dryness of the pelvic external drain, so disagreeable and weakening, and overcomes every form of weakness incident to the organs distinctly feminine.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, the makers of which are not afraid to print their formula for the diseases for which "Favorite Prescription" is used. It is the only put-up medicine for women, sold in a plain, sealed envelope, absolutely free to its credit than all other medicines for women combined, having saved thousands of women from suffering, making motherhood possible, where there was barrenness before, thereby brightening and making happy many thousands of homes by the advent of little ones to strengthen the marital bonds and add sunshine where gloom and despondency had reigned before.

Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce. He will send you good, faithful, professional advice, free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address as above.

Perfect Malt Perfect Beer

Malt is well said to be "the soul of beer." It is the life, the vitality, the substance of beer, and perfect beer is possible only with perfect malt.

Though perfect malt is an absolute essential, no brewer, even with perfect malt, can make pure, high quality, wholesome beer without pure water, choicest hops and clean machinery—all managed by experienced brew-masters along thoroughly scientific lines.

Pabst for sixty years has been the pioneer in perfecting the most highly scientific processes of brewing, and to-day he leads in the manufacture of the purest and best beer.

Pabst Beer is made only from eight-day malt. This means that Pabst Beer contains the highest amount of nutrition obtainable from malt. The exclusive Pabst eight-day method gets all the good out of the barley into the malt and insures more invigorating food extracts than are found in any other malt. This, coupled with sixty years of practical brewing experience, makes Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer unequalled as a nourishing tonic and a delicious beverage.

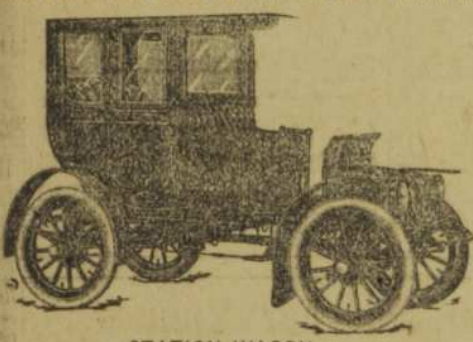

Next in importance to eight-day malt is cleanliness, and we might very well say just as important, for cleanliness is not only desirable but necessary in brewing the best beer. And in this again Pabst excels. The mammoth Pabst brewery in every department is as clean as the cleanest kitchen and the beer from mash-tub to keg or bottle is never touched by human hands. It passes through sterilized tubes and pipes into hermetically sealed sterilized tanks, and every known safeguard is established to prevent contamination.

The ingredients of Pabst Beer are the purest and best money can buy, and it is given to the public only when science and the test of time show it to be perfect in age, purity and strength; the best beer brewed.

ANOTHER VERSION
OF ORIGIN OF "23."

Jean C. Hayes, the man who is guilty of perpetrating "Everybody Works But Father" on the public, arrived in town head of Low Dockstadter's ministers the other day, bringing with him something which fits a long-forgotten want, says the Devertiser Post. It is nothing less than an explanation of the term "23," which is being used so extensively by slang lovers all over the country. Mr. Hayes's explanation, which he declares is the correct one, originated in the telegraphic world. The race track, he says, is responsible for the origin of the term.

The term "23," as almost everybody knows now, means "get out," said Mr.
Hayes yesterday. It is true telegraphers use many numbers which represent phrases, to save time, but "23" is not in their code. George M. Colan, the theatrical man, started the term going the rounds. He learned that in certain kinds of hand-punch races not more than twenty-two entries are allowed, and that when the next horse owner comes along to enter his nag he is told "23," meaning pro-

GREAT STRUGGLE.

Crown and People Expected
To Join Issues.

CZAR'S ATTITUDE, HOWEVER, IS NOT AGGRESSIVE.

PARLIAMENT TO MAKE DE-MAND FOR AMNESTY.

A MOVE AGAINST TREPOFF.

St. Petersburg, May 12.—With the new Parliament nearly under way, there is distinct relief from the tremendous strain of the past few months. But both sides anticipate a great struggle between the crown and the people. They realize that the real issue will not be joined until the answer of the lower house to the speech from the throne at the opening of Parliament is presented. Then the Emperor must choose between war and peace.

The Constitutional Democrats have effected a temporary combination with the peasants, and feel that they have behind them a four-fifths majority.
Their tactics are to avoid a conflict at the outset, in order to get through their agrarian bill as a practical measure to win and hold the support of the peasants. Then if the Government is not ready to yield to the majority, the Constitutional Democrats will force the issue by a vote of no confidence.
There are many possible complications of dead-end ahead.

Emperor Well Disposed.

The prospects of a pacific solution, however, are certainly bright. The Emperor appears to be well disposed. The words of his speech at the opening of Parliament, which are now known to have been his own hand, after rejecting all the drafts submitted by his advisers, indicate that he is sincerely desirous of a rapprochement with Parliament, and that he is willing to make sacrifices to secure full parliamentary rights, with responsible Ministers chosen from the majority under a constitutional monarchy.

With the exception of forty members, the entire peasant contingent joined the Constitutional Democrats, and in a test vote this afternoon for vice presidents, polled 361 out of 428 votes. The radical tendency of the peasants constitutes the greatest surprise of the week. One hundred and twenty-two of them are members of the Constitutional Democrats, and the banquet given by the City Council to-night in honor of the Parliament because they could not continue the expenditure of $3,300 while the people of the nation are on the verge of starvation, and because they would not attend a function to which members of the Council of the empire, who are under boycott, participated.

Campaign Against Trepoft.

Gen. Trepoft, commandant of the palace, is now generally recognized as a secret and dangerous influence at court and the Liberal newspapers have opened a systematic campaign against him.

Should the Emperor eventually elect a war minister by declining to yield further, the proletarian organizations will again come to the front, as they constitute the only militant force capable of fighting the Government by the means of a strike as a weapon. Until the final decision of the Emperor comes the Social Democrats have declared a truce with the majority.

A meeting of the secret congress of the party met here to-day and decided to temporarily suspend the boycott of the Parliament and give no further encouragement to tactics of terrorism.

Demand For Amnesty.

The feature of the second session of the lower house of Parliament to-day was a frantic demonstration in favor of amnesty. When, among a mass of congratulatory messages from all parts of the empire were read, several from political prisoners in jail or in exile in Siberia, the members except a little group on the extreme right, rose, cheering. In a body, the galleries joined in the applause. A motion was presented to send replies to the messages, but this was declared to be out of order.

Neither Premier Goremykin nor any other member of the Cabinet was seated on the ministerial benches, which instead were occupied by their assistants.

There was considerable confusion at the opening of the session.

Deer Park Hotel

DEER PARK, MD.

This famous hotel on the superb plateau of the Allegheny Mountains, known as the "Glades," will open June 1, after a most complete renovation of the entire property, making it new throughout. The twelve private cottages have been returned to the thirty-third year of this beautiful mountain resort will find it more pronounced and enjoyable than at any time in its history. The popularity of Deer Park is due to its desirable altitude, 2,500 feet above sea level, out of reach of malaria and mosquitoes, and its magnificent parking of 500 acres of forest and lawn, with miles of superb roadway, afford most delightful surroundings. It is through modern as to improve, and complete, with Bowling Alley, Billiard Room, Tennis Courts, Golf Links, swimming Pool, Lawn Tennis, and the delightful rooms and excellent cuisine are not surpassed. No mountain resort equals it for accessibility—only fifteen and a half hours ride from Louisville with a choice of three through trains daily with Pullman cars, via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. For rates in hotel, annex or cottages or illustrated booklet and floor plans, apply to N. E. Hurst, Manager, Camden Station, Baltimore, until June 1; afterward, Deer Park, Md.

Illinois Beats Purdue.

Lafayette, Ind., May 12.—The University of Illinois defeated Purdue in the dual track and field meet on Sunday. Afternoon by a score of 85 points to 23. A heavy south wind made the dashes slow. The only events won by Purdue were the mile and mile and a half runs, in which Captain Vernon was an easy winner. Illinois took eleven first, nine second, four third, and seven fourth. C. O. Dupler, of Chicago, was referee and starter.

TO UNVEIL STATUE IN PARK

BOONE DAY OF HOME-COMING

Work of Miss Enid Vandell To Be Presented To Park Board and Citizens.

Arrangements for the unveiling of the statue of Daniel Boone, which has been presented, through the Board of Park Commissioners, to the citizens of Louisville by C. C. Bickel, have been completed by Gen. John B. Castleman, president of the board. The ceremonies will be brief, and will consist of a short address by Breckinridge Castleman, who, as the representative of Mr. Bickel, will present the statue to the Board of Park Commissioners for the citizens of Louisville. On behalf of the board, Col. Reuben T. Durrett will accept the statue and deliver an address. The statue will be unveiled by Miss Helen Stewart, granddaughter of Mr. Bickel.

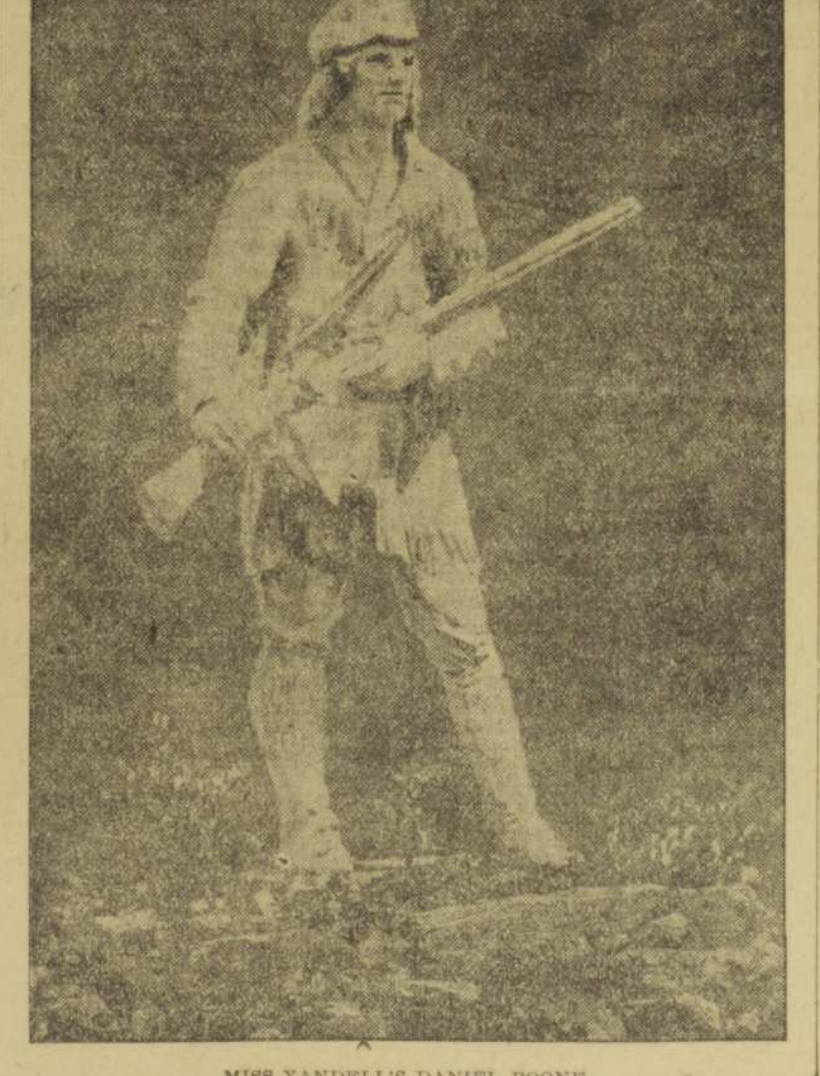

MISS ENID VANDELL.

will be held in Cherokee Park, where the statue has been placed, at 3 o'clock the afternoon of Friday, June 15, which is Daniel Boone Day of Home-coming Week.

AS NORTHERN EYE

Sees Old Soldiers of the Confederacy.

BOSTON WRITER TELLS OF NEW ORLEANS REUNION.

KNOWS NOW WHY NORTH HAD HARD TIME TO WIN.

ONLY GOOD THINGS TO SAY.

I suppose that Northerners have attended Confederate reunions, and perhaps I indicate a limited reading when I say I have run across no account of a Northern's impressions of such an affair. They are held in places unvisited by Northerners, usually, and in any event, at a time of year when Northerners leave the South. So let a son of a Northern soldier and a nephew of mine, tell you a few things about this great gathering of Confederate veterans, which has closed this day. First of all, let him say that as he attended the public functions, read the daily papers, stood about in knots of reminiscing veterans, nor once did he hear an utterance regarding the Northern soldier that was unkind; nay, more, that was not actually fraternal. When in conversation he was asked what he thought of the old Confederate soldier, he replied that he belonged to, and replied with the names of regiments of Maine and New Hampshire, he was made to feel that the old Confederate soldier was a man of whom you drew the right to call yourself a son of a veteran, that such a Confederate soldier was your uncle, too.

Tuesday night, April 24, the town began to fill with veterans of the North. A square in the French quarter where all buildings have been recently razed to erect some public buildings, a huge wooden auditorium had been erected. Looking upon this square is the old Hotel Royal, erected in the thirties, which was the headquarters of the Northern soldiers. A huge old building in the dome of whose dining-room frescoed for which Canova was paid $50,000, are slowly peeling away. Unattended these many years, the old hotel became the sleeping quarters of 2,400 veterans, while 1,600 more were bedded down in the old hotel, the whole expense borne by the city. They were fed on the best of food, and the Northern soldiers of the old hotel, the whole expense borne by the city. They were fed on the best of food, and the Northern soldiers of the old hotel, the whole expense borne by the city.

When you saw the Confederate veterans you understood why the North, with greater numbers, greater resources and the command of the sea, and a fine view of the Chesapeake Bay. They were old men, but Gen. Stephen D. Lee, commander of the Veterans' Association, could have raised out of their ranks enough men able to man a ship, and fight to go down there to Jackson's old battlefield at Chancellorsville, with their old muskets and bayonets, whip the boots of another Pakenham's army of British regulars. They were hand-to-hand fighters, and they collected a body of the size with more fine, strong, masterful faces. They were stalwart men, rugged, clean in many a cheek, clear-eyed wonderful men for their age. They were tall; goodness how tall and strapping they were! Here you had the direct to that fatality held by academic asses and mouthed by professional arguers, that to run runs out on this continent. They were native Americans, and no collection of Englishmen, Irishmen, Germans or Scandinavians could be compared to them for height and brawn.

They were old men, but how handsome they looked on horseback. They rode with the long stirrups, as they rode with Forrest. They sat up straight, hollow-backed, for in the South men are not so likely to take on flesh as in the North. They were old men, but they could make the welkin ring with the rebel yell. I felt the word rebel here, a word we have tacitly agreed to drop, because the veterans themselves used it in this connection. What a queer yell that is! It has a peculiar throatiness that gives it carrying power, a guttural sound, the call of a warbler, and a ventriloquist quality that makes its location indeterminate. Southern voices, though soft, are not light, and how they accomplish this loud falsetto is hard to understand. The younger generation does not yell, but cheers.

ATTEMPT TO POISON

WHOLE FAMILY

FANNIE OPPENHEIMER DEAD AND FOUR OTHERS ILL.

MOVED TO ROCHESTER, N. Y., FROM LOUISVILLE.

POLICE WORKING ON CASE.

Rochester, N. Y., May 12.—[Special.]—Five members of the family of Simon Oppenheimer, of this city, were taken seriously ill with what resembled poisoning early this morning. Fannie Oppenheimer, aged twenty-four, is dead. Simon Oppenheimer, his daughter Lorina, son Charles, and daughter Lorina are at the homeopathic hospital where they are suffering from the effects of the deadly ailment. Their chances for recovery are considered fair. The family partook of a breakfast supper at 8 o'clock on the previous night. The coroner and police have been investigating the case, but have as yet been unable to trace evidences of foul play.

Miss Oppenheimer's stomach has been sent to the State Chemist for analysis. It is suspected that enemies of the family placed some irritating poison in the food, and the police are working along those lines. The family had recently occupied the house where the poisoning took place. The Oppenheimers are engaged in the liquor business in this city, having come to Rochester from Louisville five years ago. David Oppenheimer owns the Corinthian and here, while Oliver S. Oppenheimer represents several Kentucky liquor concerns in this section of the State.

"CABBAGE ROW" GONE.

DESTROYED BY FIRE STARTING FROM DEFECTIVE FLUE.

Eight Families Left Homeless and Almost Destitute.

"Cabbage Row," which consisted of a series of ten frame cottages under one roof, at Cabell and Franklin streets, was completely destroyed by fire which originated from a defective flue yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Three alarms were sounded, but so good a start had the flames secured that the department was powerless to save the cottages. They were occupied by Mrs. Rildy Sandifer, 183 Cabell street; Jefferson Hummer, 184 Cabell street; John Butrum, 185 Cabell street; Mrs. Sallie Miller, 186 Cabell street; Deanna Smith, 187 Cabell street; John Kimble, 188 Cabell street; Frank Merrill, 189 Cabell street, and Mrs. A. Maxwell, 190 Cabell street. The cottages were rendered practically destitute. The loss is estimated at between $2,000 and $5,000.

IN GRAND FINALE

ELKS' PRODUCTION CLOSING AMID GREAT APPLAUSE.

"Fiddle Dee Dee" Results In Addition of About $5,000 To Anti-Tuberculosis Funds.

The final performance of "Fiddle Dee Dee" was given last night to such a capacity house as greeted its production in the two previous nights. Applause was long and hearty at the conclusion of each of the acts and many amateur actors are said to have made undying reputations for themselves. It is estimated that between $4,000 and $5,000 will be turned into the treasury of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association as the result of the Elks' production. The performance has been given three nights to houses sold out, with standing room at a premium. The expenses of the production are estimated at $1,000, and with seats at $1 each it is believed that nearly $5,000 was taken in each night.

IN MEMORIAM.
In Memory of Our Mother, Agnes K. Wierwille, Who Departed This Life May 16, 1905.
Dear mother, one year has flown. Since we have parted from you, As is only for a space of time, God's will be done.
Our home is desolate and lonely At not seeing our loved mother there.
Oh, mother, the dearest one on earth, Must we forever part?
Alas, how true but sad!
For she has been called from her earthly home To her heavenly home above.

ELABORATE RECEPTION IN HONOR OF CHARLES W. SCOVILL.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES AT BANQUET LAST NIGHT.

PREWITT A CONSERVATIVE.

The reception in honor of Charles W. Scovill, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters, of Pittsburgh, Pa., given yesterday by the members of the Louisville Association of Life Underwriters, was out of the ordinary. Mr. Scovill, said at the banquet last night at the Seelbach that he never dreamed of what "Kentucky hospitality" meant until his present visit to Louisville. He said that it had been thirty-four years since he had visited Louisville before, but that he felt that he could say claim to being a Kentuckian.

In the course of his introductory remarks he said that his mother was once a resident of New Albany; that he had two uncles living in Louisville, and that his grandfather, Sylvester Scovill, was president of Hanover College. These remarks on the part of the speaker seemed to bring him nearer his listeners, and he was given a rousing cheer.

The banquet last night at the Seelbach was a most elaborate affair in point of menu and in many other particulars. Besides the guests of honor and the managers and general agents of the leading old line life insurance companies doing business in the state, a number of business and professional men of Louisville were in attendance. Among them were: E. H. Bowen, president of the Board of Trade; W. R. Belknap, Judge Thomas Gordon, Judge Shackelford Miller, Judge Samuel Kirby, Clinton Rodes, Logan C. Murray, Young E. Allison, the Rev. Dr. E. L. Powell, Dr. T. Hunt Stucky and Col. Charles Jewett, of New Albany.

Gov. J. C. W. Beckham had been invited and fully intended to be present, but he was compelled to remain in Frankfort. In his place Henry B. Pratt, insurance Commissioner of Kentucky, appeared. Mr. Prewitt arrived a little late, but he was greeted with a round of cheers when he made his appearance. He was given a conspicuous seat at the banquet table and was called on to speak in the place of the Governor.

Much Enthusiasm.

It was 10 o'clock before the cigars were lighted and W. R. Noble, president of the local association, rapped for order. The crowd was in a good humor and enjoyed a few popular songs before they would permit themselves to be indulged in. In his opening remarks W. R. Noble said that it was a genuine pleasure for the members of the local association to have the privilege of doing honor to their distinguished guest, Charles W. Scovill. He said that the local association, like the National, was striving to put the business of insuring or writing life insurance on a higher basis. He said that the methods in vogue were far higher and of a more elevating kind than those practiced even a dozen years ago. Mr. Noble introduced Young E. Allison who acted as toastmaster.

Mr. Allison made a short address in which he paid a glowing compliment to the average life insurance agent. He said that the local association of life underwriters were striving for higher ethics in the business or profession of writing life insurance. He said that the life insurance agents of Louisville would compare favorably with any class of men anywhere in the United States. He said the members of the associations were fighting for cleaner business methods and practices. He said the bankers, merchants and professional men all recognized the life insurance representatives in Louisville as among the foremost men of the city. Charles W. Scovill, the guest of honor, was greeted with applause when he rose to speak. His remarks were confined to praise of the hospitality of Kentuckians. The speaker touched on the recent investigations of the big insurance companies in New York, and said that, after all, it resolved itself into the fact that it was for the purpose of correcting mistakes. He said that it would all redound to the good of life insurance, as it had come to stay. In speaking of the agent and the association Mr. Scovill said:

Scovill Speaks of Agents.

As individual agents are not merely the hired men of a company management, but are at least as much responsible to their policyholders, our friends and neighbors whom we insure, the fact that the 600 agents are in closer touch than others with these millions of policyholders. The individual agent with his personal commissions (which customary plan the most conservative companies most approve) has a more permanent interest in the future stability and reputation of his company and in the satisfaction of its policyholders than a salaried officer or anyone else, except a stockholder. Prewitt Sees Improvement.

"I am afraid that the press has inflamed the public mind too much against the business of life insurance. Life insurance is a good thing, and it is necessary. The Legislatures of the country in their eagerness to correct the abuses that have crept into the life insurance business, I fear, have allowed the pendulum to swing too far. It must come back. That is, I think, the opinion of the laws will have to be changed. They are too strict and stringent. For instance, I think the Legislature of New York has gone a little too far in its effort to correct certain abuses that were unearthed by the Armstrong investigation. We must be conservative in our efforts to correct."

he did not doubt the solvency of any of the companies that have been investigated and that they could make good the deferred dividend policies, but that they could be used to the disadvantage of the policyholders.

The speakers who followed were the Rev. Dr. E. L. Powell, Judge Shackelford Miller, Dr. T. Hunt Stucky, William R. Belknap and others.

President Charles W. Scovill arrived in the city yesterday morning and was the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Pendennis Club. In the afternoon he was escorted to Churchill Downs, where he attended the races. He will leave Louisville for his home this morning.

LIVED FORTY YEARS IN HOUSE WHERE HE DIED.

ANOTHER ELEVENTH HOUR SURRENDER.

SULTAN TARDILY ACCEDS TO BRITISH DEMANDS.

ENGLISH FLEET TO BE KEPT IN EASY REACH.

DELIMITATION OF BOUNDARY.

London, May 12.—In a manner characteristic of Turkish diplomacy the Porte has made an eleventh hour surrender to the British demand concerning the Tabah boundary. It had been believed in many quarters that the Sultan would not yield until actual force was displayed, but his decision probably was hastened by the knowledge that none of the Powers supported his attitude and the combined fact that British naval preparations had kept pace with her diplomatic demands.

Sir Nicholas R. O'Connor, the British Ambassador at Constantinople, in his earlier dispatches had prepared the British Government for Turkey's compliance with its demand and little attention need be paid to the reports of a conditional surrender, that phrase probably being intended to satisfy the Turkish people.

At the Foreign Office to-night the Associated Press learned that it was quite unlikely that Great Britain would accept anything in the nature of a mixed or international commission to examine into the frontier question and the Foreign Office declining to believe that Ambassador O'Connor had accepted any "conditional" surrender. It is understood the British fleet will be kept at Phaleron Bay pending a final settlement of the question, and the delimitation of the frontier. Vice Admiral Beaufort, commanding the fleet, with his officers to-night attended a banquet at the British legation in Athens, at which King George and the American and French Ministers were guests.

When the delimitation of the boundary is settled it is expected that the British Government will take measures to render Egypt strategically secure against any similar aggression by establishing a strong Egyptian garrison and fortifying El Arish, and if the water difficulty in the desert region can be solved by placing Egyptian garrisons at points on the desert routes from Tabah and Gasa, along which an invading army might threaten the Suez Canal. It is also not unlikely that Great Britain will demand the withdrawal of the Turkish commissioner at Cairo, Chast Ahmet Moukhtar Pasha, who is credited with fostering anti-British agitation.

RIDICULOUS

STORY IN ENGLISH NEWSPAPER ABOUT JOHN PAUL JONES.

Mr. Watterson, Who Was In Paris At The Time Of Disaster.

BRANDS THE FABRICATION.

[From the Saturday Louisville Times.]

Mr. Henry Watterson was most indignant when he read the cablegram from London this morning which states that, according to the Cincinnati Western Mail, the remains recently brought from France to America and so significantly honored by escort of fleets of the two nations are not those of John Paul Jones, the naval hero, but had been identified as the remains of William Jones, a Welsh coal-miner.

Mr. Watterson was in Paris at the time of the discovery and disinterment, was closely associated with Gen. Horace Porter, and knows every incident and detail that transpired. He said to the Times:

The whole story bears the indubitable stamp of an irresponsible space writer, who did not know enough of the subject matter to make out plausible case. There may have been a groom by the name of Jones in the English embassy at Paris, and he may have met his death in a tavern brawl and been buried in the Protestant cemetery, though I very much doubt that.

But the body found by Gen. Horace Porter, after six years of conscientious palustral research, assisted by the French Government and its departments, documentary, surgical and archaeological, was indisputably the body of the great Admiral. The word Jones appeared nowhere. The plate containing it had been misplaced and lost. Three coffins were unearthed before the fourth, in which the remains were found. They were in such a state of preservation that the great Admiral was instantly recognized when the coffin was removed. The succeeding autopsy by the greatest surgeon of Paris perfectly coincided with the medical certificate of the causes of death a hundred years before.

Every measurement of the corpse was identical with the measurement of the living body. Thus it will be seen that the English newspaper givish out a story that is a story that nothing whatever of the circumstances attending the discovery and identification.

"But what is the use? There are people living who do not believe that the bones of Jones were shot in a barn by Boston Cortbert, but that he was killed by the British in the battle of the Clouds. I think the Legislature of New York has gone a little too far in its effort to correct certain abuses that were unearthed by the Armstrong investigation. We must be conservative in our efforts to correct."

The speaker said that he favored the annual dividend policy rather than the deferred dividend. Many abuses, he said, have been attributed to the deferred dividend policy. He said that There was a merchant in our place. And he was wondrous wise. He used to say: "Now, come what may, I'll always advertise."

The other merchants weren't so smart. And tried to hold him down. What was the end? Well, say, my friend, To-day he owns that town.

STENOGRAPHER SUBS

TOM CAMPBELL'S WIDOW FOR LOANS MADE BY HIM.

Miss Dorothy Kleimeyer Claims She Advanced $2,000 To Former Cincinnati Lawyer.

New York, May 12.—Pursued by litigation even beyond the grave after a lifetime of trying experiences with litigious enemies, Col. Thomas C. Campbell, who for years was conspicuous in New York and Ohio practice and politics, yesterday acquired posthumous notoriety in connection with a suit his stenographer, Miss Dorothy Kleimeyer, began against his widow, says the New York Press.

Campbell in life had almost as much business with courts in the role of defendant as he had as a lawyer, although he was counsel in several of the country's most celebrated cases.

Miss Kleimeyer yesterday painted the attorney in a new light—but of an employer who borrowed thousands from his amanuensis. She said Mrs. Emma J. Campbell, the widow of an army captain, who died in 1902, had advanced $2,000 for services rendered to the defendant herself. Mrs. Campbell denied vigorously that she ever had advanced herself of the stenographer's services and fought the other claim as earnestly.

Indeed, the widow did not content herself with a mere denial. Her son threw a questionable light on side issues in connection with the plaintiff's alleged loans to the Colonel. An attempt was made, for instance, to show that Mrs. Campbell did not approve in every detail all her husband's ideas as to the duties of a shorthand writer.

George B. Campbell, the son, said he interfered to prevent Miss Kleimeyer from accompanying his father on the younger man's yacht. It was in the loss of that same yacht, the Roamer, on a Bahamas key, that Colonel Campbell suffered exposure from which he died in the Skene Sanitarium, No. 722

President street, Brooklyn, on January 5, 1904.

The Colonel's fate was of public interest in several States. He it was who was most active in the prosecution of Goetz's murderers, and who precipitated the Cincinnati riot that cost 100 lives that grew out of his success in obtaining a verdict of manslaughter for Young Berner, charged with the murder of a political leader in the Buckeye State.

Miss Kleimeyer testified she was not only the Colonel's stenographer, but his managing clerk. She loaned him $2,000, she said, of which $1,000 was protected by claims against realty he left in Ohio and Kentucky. Miss Emma Kleimeyer, the plaintiff's sister, and Mrs. Kleimeyer, mother of the young woman, gave testimony intended to corroborate her story.

The defendant tearfully asserted she begged Miss Kleimeyer to stay away from her home when Campbell was brought here in the steamer Orizaba in a dying state.

"I once found my mother," George Campbell testified, "in her home in Brooklyn in a hysterical condition because my father had asked Miss Kleimeyer to accompany him on a yachting cruise. My father was ill at the time and was going to take the cruise with my mother. I told Miss Kleimeyer that I was the owner of the yacht and that she could not come with us. I engaged a stenographer named Wilson for the voyage, and Miss Kleimeyer remained in New York."

Campbell testified Miss Kleimeyer had any claim against his father's estate. A sealed verdict was ordered.

KENTUCKY COMPANY ELOPE TO INDIANA.

ALLEGED WIRE TAPPING.

ODELL COMMISSION COMPANY CHARGED WITH OFFENSE.

Claim Made That Quotation On Market Were Stolen.

Cincinnati, May 12.—Securing Chicago Board of Trade quotations by means of wire-tapping scheme, is one of the allegations made by John Hall, Jr., in a petition filed to day asking the United States Court to allow more time for the Chicago Board of Trade in its suit against the W. J. Odell Commission Company, of this city. The petition states that if the time is granted it will attempt to prove that Odell and John M. Gorman were obtaining the Board of Trade quotations by means of a wire-tapping scheme, and against the provisions of the Federal injunction recently granted.

The petition outlines the story of the alleged discovery of an office in Philadelphia from which the Western Union Trunk cable was tapped and the quotations were said to have been secured. It charges that these were sent from the Philadelphia office to an office in the First National Bank building in Cincinnati over a wire leased from the American Telegraph Company.

Brakeman Kills Man Stealing a Ride.
London, Ky., May 12.—Ab North, said to have been stealing a ride on a freight train at Fariston, this county, last night, was shot three times and instantly killed by brakeman Joe Pruitt. Both lived at Pittsburg, near here. Pruitt claims self-defense and surrendered.

THREE BISHOPS

Recommended By Committee On Episcopacy.

METHODIST CONFERENCE WILL ADOPT REPORT.

RESOLUTION AGAINST CIGARETTES OFFERED.

VACATION FOR BISHOP SMITH.

Birmingham, Ala., May 12.—At today's session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Committee on Episcopacy made a report recommending the election of three new bishops. The report went to the calendar, and it is thought will be taken up Monday. The college of bishops, in their address, suggested the election of two new bishops, while the laymen in a memorial have asked for the election of five—one of whom is to be in charge of foreign missions. The Episcopacy Committee also reported that it had passed the characters of all the eleven bishops. It recommended the continuation of Bishops John C. Granberry and O. P. Fitzgerald on the supernumerary list and said that the assignments for Episcopal duty due regard had been given to the impaired health of Bishop W. W. Duncan. The committee also recommended a twelve-months' exemption from active duty for Bishop A. C. Smith because of poor health. The three new bishops were fixed at $4,000, supernumerary bishops at $2,000 each, and widows of deceased bishops at $1,000 each. The Rev. B. F. Lipscomb, of Petersburg, Va., conducted the opening devotional exercises at today's session of the Conference. Bishop A. Hoke Smith took the chair for the day. Dr. Jesse Bowman Young, of Cincinnati, was introduced to the Conference. Messages of felicitation from the Epworth League Union, of Washington, D. C., and the Southern Baptist Convention, at Chattanooga, were read.

The Episcopacy Committee submitted a non-current report on the resolution of J. C. Kilgo and others, that the time limit upon the pastorate be not applied to preachers in charge of institutional churches.

Report On Vanderbilt.

The Committee on Education in a report regarding Vanderbilt University, Nashville, which was made to-day, says:

"There can be no question as to the ownership of the University by the Methodist Episcopal church, South, or as to the charter right of all the bishops, but in view of certain questions we recommend the appointment of a commission of five laymen to act as follows:

"First, to inquire into and determine the present relation of the Vanderbilt University to the Methodist Episcopal church, South; second, to help the church, if necessary, to perfect the transfer of the University from the patronizing conference to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South; third, to define the charter right of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and when so defined the bishops are hereby instructed to enter on the name." The committee then recommended that the commission be composed of Judge Edward O'Rear, Frankfort, Ky.; Judge John A. Rich, Chester, Mo.; Judge E. Newman, Woodstock, Va.; Judge John A. McCullough, Greenville, S. C., and Creed Fulton Bates, Chattanooga.

Opposed To Cigarettes.

The Temperance Committee reported a resolution declaring that every preacher "should place himself unambiguously on the side of the law-makers and the fathers and mothers of our land in their efforts to save the nation from the cigarette habit." The same resolution advised young preachers against the use of tobacco in any form.

The Finance Committee reported in favor of increasing the salaries of the members of the church from eight to ten members. Thomas B. King offered a resolution fixing Tuesday next, at 10 a. m., for the election of bishops and all sectional officers. It went to the calendar.

BIG TIMBER DEAL COMPLETED IN PIKE.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—W. B. Johnson, of Pike county, has just completed the purchase of 900 hickory, oak, poplar and pine trees in Knott county for the Beaver Creek Timber Company. The trees will be sawed into lumber and shipped East. The deal involves thousands of dollars.

Don't Suffer Longer, You Can Have Instant Relief and a Lasting Cure By Using Pyramid Pile Cure.

A Trial Package Mailed Free to All.

The rectum, like the mouth, is lined with that soft, satiny material known as mucous membrane. Piles is a disease of that membrane and the blood vessels that lie under it. Fissure and fistula affect the same membrane and belong to the same family. Pyramid Pile Cure slipped into the bowel, melt and spread themselves over the diseased mucous membrane, and act just as a salve would if the trouble was on the outside of the body and could be easily seen and gotten at. The immediate relief they give is proven in the most agonizing cases will startle you, as it has already startled many thousands of "doubting Thomases" before you, who have tried everything and sent for the sample package, firmly convinced that they would again be disappointed.

But they weren't. Pyramid Pile Cure don't disappoint. They cure. They are for sale at all druggists at 50 cents a box and are worth an even hundred to the person who needs them.

Mr. John Byrne, of Second Avenue, New York City, writing under date of January 17, 1906, says: "I received the sample and used it right away. I got so much relief from it after twenty years' suffering that I bought a 50-cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone. I feel like a new man."

Or if you want to prove this matter at our expense, before purchasing, send your name and address to the PYRAMID DRUG CO., 4934 Pyramid building, New York City. We will mail you a trial package free by return mail.

DYNAMITE DESTROYS

GREAT FERRIS WHEEL ONCE WONDER OF THOUSANDS.

Two Explosions Required To Wreck Great Structure At St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., May 12.—The great Ferris wheel, the wonder of two universal expositions, was blown up with dynamite yesterday afternoon, and now only an immense pile of twisted and broken iron rods and beams marks the place where it stood in Forest Park. It was blown up by dynamite.

Two explosions were required. Yesterday morning, about 11 o'clock, fifty sticks of dynamite were exploded under the supports of the wheel. The concrete blocks were cracked and broken, but the wheel remained upright. In the afternoon the second effort was made.

The wheel had been stripped of its cars. The supports had been loosened as far as possible. Several weeks ago the engine and other machinery which turned the wheel were removed and the wheel was allowed to swing free. A high wind from the west, catching the upper part, caused the wheel to revolve slowly. The boxes which supported the wheel were secured later, but one evening recently it broke loose, and the next morning it was swinging back and forth with the wind.

The great bolts had been removed from the wheel, and the concrete blocks and everything had been done to make the fall swift and the wreck complete. In each of the concrete blocks on which rested the booties which supported the wheel on the east about twenty-five holes were drilled. In these were placed 100 sticks of dynamite. A wire led from the caps to the summit of a hill on the south, about 200 feet away, connecting with a battery.

Kept Crowd at Distance.

The crowd of curious people was told to retire out of danger, and most of them went to the top of the hill. From the tall bleachers of the stadium, the crowd watched the wheel as it fell. The crowd, forgetful of 100-yard dashes and hurdle events, watched for the fall of the great wheel.

W. G. Bennett, superintendent of the Chicago house wrecking company, directed operations. When the charge was set off in the forenoon rocks and blocks of concrete were hurled 200 feet in the air. The boxes which supported the wheel were blown to pieces, and the full length into the ground.

Although the wheel was 268 feet in diameter, it collapsed in a space less than thirty feet across. It is little more than junk now, and will be cut up and carried away in pieces. The wreckage can be cleared away. The iron rods, two inches thick, by which the outer rim of the wheel was hung on the axle, are twisted and tangled like twisted string, and the iron beams

NASHVILLE FESTIVAL

WILL BE BIGGEST EVENT OF YEAR IN TENNESSEE.

Elks' Reunion Expected To Bring Hundreds of Visitors—Big Parade Planned.

Nashville, Tenn., May 12.—[Special.]—Nashville is preparing to make the week of May 21 a festival occasion for the purpose of attracting many thousands of visitors from all over the adjacent country. The festival is being inspired by the Elks, who hold their State convention at Nashville during the week, and the Board of Trade. One of the features is a memorial in honor of the late John W. Thomas, president of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. This will be musical, with a large chorus, and will be held during the entire week at the Ryman auditorium.

Another feature is a parade from the industrial establishments in and around the city. This promises to be the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in the South. Nashville is now the first manufacturing city in the South, and can make a great display. The Elks' convention, which is the first annual gathering of the Elks, will be held at the city courts was acquired on the ground of self-defense. Subsequently he was tried by court-martial, found guilty of breach of army discipline and violation of army regulations and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

An increase of 18 per cent. in the manufacturing establishments of Mississippi is shown in a preliminary summary of statistics for the State issued by the Census Bureau. The figures are for the calendar year 1904 and are compared with 1900.

No Final Action Taken.

Memphis, Tenn., May 12.—The entire morning and afternoon sessions of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were taken up to-day in considering the suspension of the charter of Division 105, of New York City. The convention resolved itself into a committee of the whole and the New York case was brought before the delegates. It is understood that no final action was taken and the matter will go over until Monday.

FORM PLANS.

May Beautify Old Cemetery
In Jeffersonville.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION TAKE PART.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY CONSIDERS THE PROPOSITION.

ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR.

Plans are being matured in Jeffersonville for the preservation of the second cemetery laid out in that city, which is at the foot of West-Center street and immediately to the west of the approach of the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company's line to the Big Four bridge. There has been a question for a long time as to whom the property belongs to, as it has not been used for a burying ground for years. The heirs of Samuel H. Patterson, it has been said for a long time, have reversionary rights.

At a meeting of the Clark County Historical Society Friday night, which was held at the home of Mrs. F. B. Campbell, Mayor Burtt expressed plans by which the cemetery may be beautified. An effort has been exerted for some time by Ann Rogers Clark, chairwoman, Daughters of the American Revolution, to become custodian of the grounds, but has not been successful. Under the plan of Mayor Burtt the newly organized cemetery association can take charge of graveyard, and by mutual consent, allow the Daughters of the American Revolution to look after it. In case this is done a park will be established almost in the heart of the city.

There is not so much as a stone now to indicate where a body is buried in the old cemetery, but it is said that the bones of 2,000 persons are still there. Several years ago the cemetery was abandoned and many bodies were exhumed and buried elsewhere, but the number was comparatively few. It is known that the body of at least one soldier of the Revolutionary War was buried in the grounds. He was Solomon Burnett, and it is said the spot has been accurately determined and can be marked.

The remains of many notable persons are in the old cemetery, among them those of Capt. Charles Henry, who was prominent as an officer of the State militia.

Besides taking up the question of preserving the old cemetery, the annual election of officers of the Clark County Historical Society took place, and those named were: Louis C. Baird, president; Miss Ella Jewett, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Eleanor Campbell, current historian; and one vice president from each township, as follows: John G. Owens, Jeffersonville; John A. H. Owens, Clarksville; R. L. Plaskett, Washington; G. C. Plaskett, Owensboro; F. M. Carr, Oregon; V. V. Hollister, Bethel; William Beck, Silver Creek; M. L. Dunlevy, Monroe; Dr. J. H. Heynolds, Union; J. L. Williams, Carr; Prof. W. W. Borden, Wood.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

Held by Jeffersonville Councilmen To Make Plans.

A secret caucus of the six Republican members of the Jeffersonville City Council, who are Charles Strauch, Gustav A. Schmitt, and John V. Francis, Councilmen-at-large; David Johnson, Councilman from the first ward; William C. Young, third ward; Alvin H. Crawford, fifth ward; and John W. Night and considerable work is said to have been mapped out. Frank Anderson, who is making the plan, is making the caucus, and the plan is to call the caucus to order for the purpose of the ordinance to repeal the measure providing for the sale of six pieces of city property that are advertised to be disposed of May 17. The ordinance may be modified in the ordinance calling the caucus to order, which is being called by the councilmen. It is said that it does not conform to the ordinance.

The ordinance to repeal the one for the sale of the Spring-street engine-house property, Franklin Square, Rader Park and three other pieces of ground is looked upon as a measure for the sale of intoxicating liquors and the ordinance to repeal the measure providing for the sale of six pieces of city property that are advertised to be disposed of May 17. The ordinance may be modified in the ordinance calling the caucus to order, which is being called by the councilmen. It is said that it does not conform to the ordinance.

FIND COAL OIL.

Rich Strike May Have Been Made Near Memphis, Ind.

Considerable excitement exists at Memphis, Ind., fifteen miles north of Jeffersonville, over what is believed to be a paying strike of coal oil in the land of the Memphis Canning Company, the controlling interest in which is owned by Louis Cohen and his sons, of Jeffersonville. Considerable trouble has been experienced in finding good water for the canning factory and it was decided to drive a deep well under the belief that a good flow could be secured. Work was begun several days ago and at a depth of sixty-seven feet gas in considerable volume was found. Yesterday the drill reached a depth of 122 feet and suddenly shot downward and was lost. This was followed by a heavy flow of salt water and it was not long until coal oil began to make its appearance and in a few hours had filled the hole made for water to the depth of fifty feet. From that time on the rise was small. The well was abandoned for water purposes, as it was evident it would not be fit for use. Further investigations are to be made regarding the flow of oil and Prof. W. Borden, of Borden College, has sent a man to Memphis to examine the well.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.

Excellent Programme Arranged For Tuesday Evening and Seats Are In Demand.

The large advance sale of seats for the Philharmonic concert on Tuesday night, May 15, at Macaulay's Theatre, is most encouraging to the management. The strong attraction is Mr. Schmidt's sacred cantata, "Judith," which is repeated by special request. In this the Musical Club chorus assists with the soloists: "Judith," Mrs. S. S. Spaulding; "Cavaliers," Mrs. S. S. Spaulding; "Ozias," Mr. P. J. Schlecht; "Aholah," Mr. T. C. Barr. The impressive character of the music was greatly aided by the former performance, and the production will be even better than it was on that occasion.

—The Rev. Father J. F. Hillebrand, who recently has made a most favorable impression as a singer, appears as the principal soloist, singing Santuzza's Romance, "Cavaliers," Mrs. S. S. Spaulding. This brilliant aria is remarkably adapted to the characteristics of her voice and style. Gould's short oratorio, "Out of Darkness," is also to be sung by the Musical Club and Mrs. Beasley. Mrs. Spaulding, Mr. Root, Mr. Barr and Mr. Webb.

—The overture to Mendelssohn's "Athalia" completes the programme.

STAND PAT POLICY
IN MUTUAL LIFE.

Entire Board of Trustees To Be Nominated For Re-election In July.

New York, May 12.—The Times today says:

It became known yesterday that the plan of the administration party in the Mutual Life Insurance Company is to nominate re-election the entire board of trustees as it will stand on July 18. That is the date on which the company's annual meeting will be held to name their officers. The policyholders of their organizations have a right to be heard.

This "stand-pat" policy in the Mutual means, according to information already given, that the Trustee's Committee, which is in charge of the company, anything that could be called "disclamers," and that, except for such "disclamers," as it has been passed on by the committee, the company will stand on July 18. That is the date on which the company's annual meeting will be held to name their officers. The policyholders of their organizations have a right to be heard.

MACK EVERSOLE SHOT

You will never get rich on wages. No one ever did. Every man in this world who ever got big money got it either by speculation or investment. Speculation is unsafe. You stand more chance to lose than you do to make. Investments are right the other way. Make a safe investment and it is sure to bring you returns.

Don't hesitate about this stock. It is absolutely safe and sure. Here is a Vital Point to Remember! There never has been a failure of consequence in electrical manufacturing. Stop and think of that. All are immensely successful. All pay big dividends and have made their investors wealthy.

This company will soon be one of the biggest in electrical manufacturing in the world. This is bound to be so, because there is not a place now where a motor or generator is used but it will have to sooner or later change for the Bidwell Cold Motor or Generator. Why? Because we make something better than any other kind now known.

The Bidwell Cold Motor is one of the greatest necessities of the 20th century. This stock has already taken five jumps up. Now is the time to buy. It will go higher in about 30 days. The profit is yours. Don't speculate! Invest. Here you have a necessity. Look at this list below. Every one of these people made his fortune by supplying some great necessity:

PETER COOPER, HEINZ, GOULD, LEITER, EDISON
WHITNEY, MOORE, STANFORD,
CARNegie, STUDEBAKER, SWIFT, MOORE, LEE, S.
ROCKEFELLER, FAIRBANKS, MACKAY, FRICK, HARRIMAN, SENATOR CLARK, VANDERBILT, MARSHALL FIELD, MORGAN, PULLMAN.

Here is the way manufacturing stocks in necessities jump:

First sold at Now sell at
QUAKER OATS, common 150 187
AMERICAN RADIATOR, common 150 187
AMERICAN SMELTING 300 155

And this is only a few. Safer and surer than life insurance or trust stocks. All this advance has been made in ten years and less. I will supply the greatest necessity now known in the business world. The demand is so great that it will make all of us rich. If you want to get in with me on this you will have to be quick about it. The stock is selling like hot cakes.

These Are the Cold Facts—You Must Act Quickly. If you want some of this stock at the present low price you must come in now. There is only a small amount to be sold at the present price.

I firmly believe that within five years the stock will be selling at $3 a share. This is your opportunity. It is a case of come quick or not at all. I am at the office in the Monadnock building, every day from 9 to 5 o'clock. As to reliability and financial standing we refer you to any commercial agency.

Courier-Journal

CITY FEATURES

A City of a Million.

There has been a continued growth shown in many lines manufactured in St. Louis since the close of the World's Fair, and a wonderful interest is now manifested by all the business interests looking to an increased population. A part of advertising has recently been approved that will make the city's population one million in a very short time—not by bringing into the city new enterprises and new manufacturing industries, but by increasing the consumption of St. Louis made articles. If the demand for such products as are now manufactured in the city is increased, enough new labor will be necessary to quickly make St. Louis a city of a million souls.

That the demand for St. Louis made goods can be increased is best evidenced by an illustration. Take, for instance, the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Company, who have established six large shoe factories in the last five years, and employ about five thousand people. This firm is only eight years old, and by making good shoes and using the newspapers freely to acquaint the people as to the quality of the product, have built a business which now aggregates eight million dollars annually, and their gain in shipments over last year is over one million six hundred thousand dollars. This achievement shows plainly what has been done with Star Brand shoes, and what one firm has done to add to the growth and advertisement of St. Louis as a shoe market, and what other lines manufactured in St. Louis.

The Million Club have taken up this matter in a business-like manner, and wonderful results are sure to come from their effort.

Rupture Specialist.

The Louisville Tress and Rupture Company, Room 24 Courier-Journal Building, always holds your rupture at the right spot with comfort and ease, and cures a great percentage of obstinate cases without the knife.

The old reliable tailoring firm of R. Moesman & Son has been succeeded by L. B. Moesman, who is now located in new and elegant quarters at 125 W. Market street. Mr. Moesman has experienced an unusually large patronage this spring.

NATIONAL ICE CREAM CO.—New Hygienic Milk and Ice Cream Plant will be ready in June, and positively guarantee to furnish cream, milk, butter and ice cream absolutely pure.

M. Schaaf, Room 5 Wilkes Block, has some excellent values in Spring Millinery, which she is closing out at a sacrifice.

DEADLOCK.

SENATE COMMITTEE DIVIDED ON TYPE OF CANAL.

Wrangle of Hour's Duration Over Question of Accepting Carmack's Proxy.

Washington, May 12.—The Senate Committee on Intercommerce Canals is at a deadlock on the question of the type of canal to be recommended. The question was taken up to-day, and the vote showed five for a sea-level canal and five for the lock type recommended by the minority of the Board of Consulting Engineers.

There were two absentees—Senators Gorman and Carmack. The latter telegraphed from Tennessee, instructing the chairman to count his vote for the sea-level type, which would have made a majority against the lock canal desired by the Administration. After wrangling for an hour over the question of accepting the vote of Senator Carmack the committee adjourned until Wednesday next.

There are three types of plans before the committee. Only two of these are being considered seriously, the sea-level canal indorsed by the majority of the board of consulting engineers and the lock type referred to, which is indorsed by the minority. The third plan is the Morgan type, which practically has been rejected by the committee.

Investigations extending over the present session of Congress have been conducted by the committee, but only a small portion of the inquiries have been devoted to the determination of type. The meeting to-day was not until last night, and some of the friends of the sea-level project have intimated that the haste was for the purpose of getting a vote before the return of Senator Carmack, who is campaigning in his State. It was known that he favored the sea-level type. The vote to-day was as follows: For Morgan and Tallafarro, For lock type, sea level, Kittredge, Platt, Ankeny, Millard, Hopkins, Knox and Simmons. An effort was made by Senator Kittredge to vote Senator Carmack, but objection was made. It was argued that this course would be tantamount to inasmuch as the Tennessee Senator has not attended any of the hearings. Senator Gorman, who has been ill since the hearings were begun, has made no request that his name be voted.

If Senator Carmack should return to Washington before Wednesday, undoubtedly the decision of the committee will be in favor of a sea-level canal. If the question were submitted to the committee whether his vote should be counted, it is said that the sea-level advocates would win.

CENTRAL UNIVERSITY BOYS NOT EXPELLED.

Danville, Ky., May 12.—Another meeting of the faculty of Central University was held this morning to consider the trouble which occurred yesterday between Charles Miller, Owsley Grant and John Hurley. The two young men from Louisville will be allowed to remain at school under probation and should their behavior during the remainder of the session be other than the best they will be expelled. The matter was satisfactorily settled to all concerned.

REPUBLICANS RESIGN FROM COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Object To Post-office Appointments Made in Mason County.

Mayville, Ky., May 12.—At the meeting in this city this morning, the Republican County Executive Committee, May W. E. Stalbrecht, chairman, and nearly all the committee resigned on account. It is alleged, of the post-office appointments made in the county.

Our Great Wash Goods Sale Continues
With Renewed Interest. Bargains Now More Plentiful Than Ever. Mail Orders Filled.

We commenced this sale last week, and despite the unfavorable weather we encountered, success was so great that many lines were entirely sold out. These vacancies have been filled in. In addition thereto many more new things were added, making this—the second week of this great sale—the frolic time for economists.

It is only fair to say that this is the greatest sale ever inaugurated by us. We realize that we are overstocked, and to evade the possibility of carrying goods over to the next season, we rather sustain the loss required to achieve our purpose. Hence, this is price-cutting time for us, and money-saving time for you, just when the season begins and not when it's over. Mail orders of $5.00 or more delivered free within a radius of 200 miles of Louisville.

Marvelous Cash Purchase Sale of 1,100 Dress Skirts.
To-Morrow, Monday: A Sale of Exceptional Saving Advantages.

Our buyer, now in New York, purchased 1,100 high-grade Dress Skirts from the following well-known manufacturers in New York: Crystal Skirt Co., 7 E. 17th street; Lublang & Beck, 31 W. 15th street; Casper & Beck, 11 W. 20th street, and A. Meyer & Co., 41 E. 11th street. The skirts represent the overproduction of the foregoing firms. Their anxiety to dispose of them, coupled with our spot-cash purchasing ability, were the magnets that brought them to us at prices lower than the actual cost of the materials. They go on sale to-morrow at like prices and we suggest early shopping to those who would avoid the rush.

In this sale of high-grade Dress Skirts is every style of importance, including the new Sunburst model. The materials are the most desirable kinds—such as Panamas, Checks, Novelties and Mohairs, in an almost endless variety of patterns. We have all lengths and sizes. We have divided the purchase into five different lots and arranged them on tables, so that they can be easily seen. Persons who order any of these Skirts through mail will please give waist measure and skirt length.

CZAR RESENTS GOOD ADVICE

William Tells Him How To Save Money.

First Step Should Be Reduction of Army.

Nicholas Disposed To Play
War Lord.

RUSSIA'S DECLINING CREDIT.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
St. Petersburg, May 1.—The czar is very much enraged by a personal letter received from Emperor William advising him to reduce his army and use the money saved for the improvement of the civil administration. William told Nicholas, it is said, that during the past ten years or longer no one would dream of making war on Russia, and that an army of 100,000 men would suffice for all legitimate needs.

"Don't pension your Generals and Admirals, set them to work at reduced salaries as civil administrators—that will save you a pot of money," said the Kaiser's letter.

Nicholas does not want to be treated as a war lord failure and declares that, instead of decreasing his army, he will very materially strengthen it, and besides rebuild his navy as a match for the German.

Count Witte and the financiers, on the other hand, are pleased with that part of the Kaiser's letter that holds out a more hopeful view of Russian finance. The Kaiser thinks Russia far from bankrupt, "since her soil is pregnant with treasure of gold, and oil."

The following table indicates conclusively how low Russia's credit has fallen in nine years:

Bonds in 1897.	Bonds in 1906.
1. Russian Empire.	1. German Empire.
2. Russian gold bonds.	2. Italian gold bonds.
3. Austrian gold bonds.	3. Austrian gold bonds.
4. Italian gold bonds.	4. Italian gold bonds.
5. Portuguese gold bonds.	5. Portuguese gold bonds.
6. Romanian gold bonds.	6. Romanian gold bonds.
7. Chinese gold bonds.	7. Chinese gold bonds.
8. Serbian gold bonds.	8. Serbian gold bonds.
9. Chilean gold bonds.	9. Chilean gold bonds.
10. Mexican gold bonds.	10. Mexican gold bonds.

12. Bulgarian gold bonds.	12. Bulgarian gold bonds.
13. Spanish gold bonds.	13. Spanish gold bonds.

Russian bonds holding third place in 1897, today occupy the place formerly held by the Bulgarians, while Bulgarian bonds have fallen one point.

MEMOIRS POSTPONED.

Princess Metternich Says Women
Have No Business With Politics.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Vienna, May 1.—Princess Pauline Metternich, who recently celebrated her seventieth birthday and remains a leading figure in Vienna society, told the Courier-Journal correspondent that the story about her forthcoming memoirs is not founded on fact. "I am not engaged in regular writing, and never was," she said. "I am making notes now and then, but they are not for immediate consumption. I write of events and the documents, diplomatic, political and otherwise, which I have collected during my husband's long career as a diplomat, and while I led the life of a court lady and an intimate of Emperors and Kings, all the royalty of Europe in fact. If these documents ever see the light, it will probably be a hundred years after I have been gathered to my fathers." The princess, though her hair is white, still has a youthful voice and eyes glistening with love of life and intelligence. She is still in correspondence with all the crowned heads of Europe and very active in charity work. As a recreation she sews and embroiders the most beautiful pastings and garments for the church ever offered by a nonprofessional.

Her salons abound in portraits, bibelots, curiosities and similar reminders of her Paris days, when she rivaled Empress Eugenie as a leader of society and fashion. Her collection of political correspondence, royal documents, last wills and testaments of Kings and Queens, military and other political papers, etc., fills an immense strong box, which is taken from a vault daily and can be replaced at a moment's notice. This strong box is said to contain the greatest collection of political documents and official secrets in Europe.

PLAYED POKER FOR LIFE.

Count Held Unlucky Hand and Had To Kill Himself.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Warsaw, May 1.—Count Komorowski shot himself in a private dining-room adjoining a ball where the "Aristocracy Ball" was in progress. As his rival, Baron Riedel, led the Count's intended wife to a waltz, a muffled shot was heard by many, but no attention was paid by the large assembly, and only an hour later the Count was missed. Those going in search for him found him sitting in a chair with a bullet wound in his heart. It appears that the two noblemen had a quarrel over the young woman that tripped the gay fantasist while her husband-to-be killed himself. The Count called the Baron had name. Cards were exchanged and seconds. These latter arranged an American duel, so-called, to be fought out on the spot. The enemies sat down to a poker game, playing for each other's lives. The Baron held the winning hand and the Count sent for another bottle. Then his friends withdrew and at the end of thirty minutes he put a bullet into his heart, hoping instantly.

PRINCE JEAN HOPEFUL.

Tells Correspondent His Time Is Surely Coming.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Paris, May 1.—Prince Jean of Bourbon, or as his adherents call him, Jean III, King of France and Navarre, the grandson of Napoleon, the watchword of the Count sent for another bottle. Then his friends withdrew and at the end of thirty minutes he put a bullet into his heart, hoping instantly.

FOR THIRD TERM

REPUBLICAN MUNICIPAL CLUB INDORSES ROOSEVELT.

Want Candidate For Congress In Thorough Accord With National Administration.

The Republican Municipal Club, at its meeting last night, endorsed President Theodore Roosevelt for a third term for President of the United States. The resolutions assert that he should again be elected so that he can carry out the reforms which he has inaugurated. The club also says that it will not endorse any candidate nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket who is not in accord with the national Administration and the Republican platform of 1904. Be it further

"Resolved, that we will not endorse any candidate nominated for Congress on the Republican ticket who is not in thorough accord with the present national Administration and the Republican platform of 1904. Be it further

"Resolved, that we advocate the re-election of Theodore Roosevelt for another term in order that he may be able to complete the work already mapped out. We believe the regulating of trusts and corporate interests with equity to the masses of our great common people should appeal to the heart of every patriotic American citizen who favors equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

"W. L. HALL, Secretary."

Grocer Makes Assignment

William E. Stier, a grocer and a home keeper at Twenty-first and Main streets, made an assignment yesterday to the Louisville Trust Company. Back business forced him to suspend. The assets and liabilities have not yet been ascertained.

Baron Currie Dies in London.

London, May 12.—Baron Currie (Philip Henry Wedderburn), formerly British Ambassador at Constantinople and later Ambassador of Great Britain at Rome, died to-day at his residence, Hawley, Blackwater Hampshire, after a long illness. He was born in 1834, and was private secretary to Lord Salisbury when the latter, in 1878-80, was Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

World's Leading Criminologist.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Turin, May 1.—Prof. Lombroso celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as a criminologist the other day. Jurists and physicians from all over the world assembled at the Criminology Congress, and congratulated him on the fact that he was still leader of that branch of science.

Eighteenth Century Anecdotes.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Paris, May 1.—A Paris publisher is about to issue a book of the Eighteenth century anecdotes from which the following is quoted: "An English banker named Stair was accused of conspiracy, viz., to kidnap King George and send him to Philadelphia. When interrogated he remarked: 'There are a good many reasons why a King needs a banker, but what is a banker to do with a King?'"

Thinks President Incisive.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
Berlin, May 1.—The organ of the Socialistic party, Vorwaerts, continues to make fun of the official German press, which never tires of praising Roosevelt for "his love of the Fatherland." The Vorwaerts insists that Roosevelt's compliments to the various nations must not be taken seriously. "As to his eulogies of the German-Americans, he gave the Jews even more and sweeter stuff last November," says the Socialistic organ.

Stolen from the Royal Line of France.

Up to recently Prince Jean sold wine and liquor for a living, but now his adherents have provided him with a more "suitable business" he has transformed himself into a civil engineer, drills artesian wells and builds bath houses. He is thirty-five years of age, and wears a Kaiser Wilhelm moustache. There are two other Princes of France, Charles, who absolutely refuses to go to work and lives by his wits, and Louis, a sergeant in the French Foreign Legion.

COLLEGE

A Visit to the Grandest Cathedral Ever Erected For the Worship of God.

CAPITAL OF THE PROVINCE OF THE RHINE

A Name That Recalls Sweet Odors, But the Place Belies the Name.

The great popularity of the contest of the Courier-Journal, which will result in twenty fortunate young women of Kentucky and Southern Indiana enjoying a seven-week tour of Europe next summer, has already aroused the interest of the public. In pursuance of its policy to spare no effort or expense to make the tour one of perfect enjoyment, the Courier-Journal has arranged with correspondents familiar with every country and city that will be visited, and will publish from week to week letters describing in detail the places that are to be seen. These letters, which will be published in the Courier-Journal, will be sent to the contestants and will be based upon personal experience and impressions, and not upon guide-books and encyclopedias. The letters will be sent to the contestants and will be based upon personal experience and impressions, and not upon guide-books and encyclopedias. (Special Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

Cologne, April 29.—This is the City of the Cathedral. Many spires will greet the Kentucky "Pilgrims of the Rhine" as they drift down the river near this richest and most renowned of all the ancient cities that stand upon its banks. But first to come to view and dominating all else, whether the spectator stand within or without the city, is the mighty mass of the most truly perfect structure ever reared by man for the worship of the Christian God.

Rome has St. Peter's; London, St. Paul's; Milan is one of the cities that possess a splendid shrine. But Cologne has the cathedral of cathedrals—the one structure worthy of having inspired that wonderful phrase: "Architecture is frozen music."

There are many sources of interest in this great old capital of the province of the Rhine. But each moment spent in other sightseeing would be begrudged were it not that every step, in no matter what direction, brings forth a new picture of the edifice in the shadow of whose towers the whole city seems to have grown. The great mother-bird. Happily, the skyscraper is as yet unknown in Cologne. It would be a crime as great as the desecration of Niagara by factories, or the transformation of Mammoth Cave into a cold storage warehouse, if a single one of those steel skeletons were ever permitted to rear its harsh angularity of line in contrast with the majestic beauty of the building that now rises serenely and supremely above all surroundings.

Agrippa's Legacy.

Nowhere else in Europe will the Kentucky girls have a keener sense of the newness of their native land than will come to them while in Cologne. They have grown naturalized to the ancestral colonial mansion of the "old South" that has seen the birth of five or six generations as an example of venerable antiquity. They will find themselves here in a city that is a thriving center of commerce, with no symptom of industrial decay, but a city in whose history a few centuries is a negligible fraction—a mere bagatelle.

It was in the time when Marcus Agrippa was ruling the Romans that he pitched the camp of his legions. Later on it was decided in the cheerful fashion of the then dominant race, to order an entire people to make a new home. This was the victims of the election notice, and the Romans, having accustomed them to benevolent assimilation, they obeyed orders, moved their families and other belongings across the river, and made this spot the Oppidum Ulpiorum. Thereafter it figured so much in the history of the empire that it won the title of "the Rome of the North." Here Trajan received the simmons to assume the imperial purple; here Vitellius and Silvanus were proclaimed Emperors, and here the latter was murdered by his cohorts. It was in the camp of Germanicus that his daughter, Agrippina, the mother of Nero, was born; and it was that unattractive lady who, in a moment of vanity, desirous to commemorate her birthplace, persuaded her husband, Claudius, to establish a colony of veteran soldiers here, and to give to the city the name of "Agrippina's Colony"—Colonia Agrippina, the name which it still retains in part.

That was just 1855 years ago. But it does not seem so long in Cologne. Things move slowly here. The foundations of the Roman walls still remain, and here and there they may still be traced through the heart of the present city. There are more dark men and women, with aquiline features, in Cologne than in any other city in Germany. Some students say that ancient Rome still survives in the faces of the natives of this ancient colony. One thing is certain: the colony clung to the ancient customs much longer than the other cities, for up to the very days when the French Revolution started an apish Gallic revival of old Roman standards, here in Cologne the leading citizens were still styled patricians, and the two Burgomasters were the popular toga and were attended by lictors while our ancestors were fighting at Saratoga and Yorktown.

Medieval Cologne.

It was in the Middle Ages, however, that Cologne came to its greatest glory, and a little later to its depths of decadence. It had no master save of its own choosing for the two centuries that ranged from the Thirteenth to the Fifteenth. Chief city of the Hanseatic League, it put an army of thirty thousand men into the field when it chose to go to war. It taxed and checked the flow of trade with England, Spain, Portugal and Italy. It was in truth "the Rome of the North." And even to-day it has what it had then—its carnival be visited, and in this church, begun in the Seventh century, the same cheerful custom of using marriage banns as decorative material will be found, for the choir is adorned with their skulls set under gilded arabesques. The Apostles Church is a beautiful example of Romanesque architecture, but a disappointment waits in St. Peter's. Its altar-piece is "The Crucifixion of St. Peter," one of the greatest paintings in the world, but now so marred by time that those who are enthusiastic over its beauties are aping past generations in proclaiming the merit of what is no longer possible to see. There are other churches of much interest, and the public buildings and new Ringstrasse or circle of boulevards are in striking contrast with the ancient, narrow, crooked streets. There are houses such as the one in the Sternengasse which the guides point out as Rubens' birthplace. It was his house, but he was not born there, and his chief interest there in the fact that when Maria de Medici, the Queen who had made Rubens' fortune, was a forsaken exile from her country to Cologne, she found only one friend and one refuge and died in this house, guest of the painter whose royal patron she had been.

The Scent of Cologne.

As for the other features of Cologne, the most friendly wish for the Kentucky girls is that each of them may be seized with a severe cold in the head the day before they reach here. There is no improvement since the days of Coleridge, who gave literary expression to the reputation for evil odors that the city has had for centuries. There may be worse isolated smells than Cologne furnishes, but nowhere else on earth is there such a complete collection. The inclination is all the greater to invest promptly in the city's most noted product, and the girls will enjoy an hour or more visiting the interesting shops. Eau de Cologne is to be had here good and cheap, and there is a chance for mistaken purchases. The "only veritable" Cologne water is sold at more than forty places in Cologne, and each makes and sells a different brand. The girls will be kept from making a mistake by the fact that the Cologne water is sold at more than forty places in Cologne, and each makes and sells a different brand. Postmaster Trammell Acquitted.

Dothan, Ala., May 12.—Postmaster Byron Trammell, one of the leading Republican politicians of South Alabama, was acquitted to-day of the murder of R. J. Barnes, a cotton broker, by a jury last night. The jury was out all night. Barnes boarded at the Trammell home, and was shot by Trammell as he was entering the house for dinner. Trammell charged him with improper conduct toward Mrs. Trammell.

Cologne's Glory.

Meanwhile, throughout the centuries, the best-skilled artisans of Europe were working always on the walls of the building that is Cologne's greatest glory. The French master, the great Columbus set sail for the New World, the master whose name is now unknown—the architect of the Cologne cathedral watched the first stone lowered into the place where it has reposed for six and one-half centuries. Begun in 1248, this church was planned and built by the hands of the same men whose figures may furnish the shapers of the Courier-Journal tour some food for thought. Kingdoms rose and fell and names were born and died while the plans grew into their present perfection. There were centuries when practically no progress was made. There were times of discouragement, such as when much of the stone used in its construction, brought from the Drachenfels, was found to be decaying, and had to be removed, block by block. There were times of discouragement, such as when much of the stone used in its construction, brought from the Drachenfels, was found to be decaying, and had to be removed, block by block.

Figures will give scant idea of the impressiveness of the most regular and most perfect of the steel skeletons in existence. The spires reach the unprecedented height of 512 feet, which exactly equals the cathedral's length, and the height of the gable in the transept corresponds to the cathedral's width.

We may quote John L. Stoddard concerning the impression it makes. "It is the consummation of grandeur and religion. When one stands beside its base and lets his gaze climb slowly upward over its enormous buttresses and towers, the effect is mountainous, and its architecture appears Alpine in its sublimity, the mighty shafts (which seem as solid as the eternal hills, yet are as graceful as the elm), rising like a colossal stairway leading up to heaven. At such a time, when we consider all the numberless details of the vast edifice, in flying buttresses, statuary, gargoyles, turrets, foliage and fretwork—each perfect and complete and wrought in centuries past by men who did their little part and then passed on, yielding their places to others—the grand cathedral seems a fitting emblem of the progress of our race."

Satan and the Builder.

It seems one of fate's tragedies that there is no clue to the name of the creator of this marvel. It is accounted for in a legend, still plausibly believed in Cologne, which tells that the architect one night was walking on the river's bank, despairing of ever achieving his ideal, when Satan suddenly appeared to him and offered him the most magnificent plan if he would give him in exchange his soul. "Will my name become famous?" asked the artist. "It will forever rank with that of Pyramids," was the reply. The architect begged for a night in which to consider the matter, and consulted a cunning priest, who advised him to take the devil's plan. The architect in his hands, and while conversing to glance at it and master its details. The priest, who had then declined to make the bargain, appeared upon Satan, seeing himself outwitted, cried: "You have broken faith with me. So be it. Only remember this, and let it haunt your dying hour, that when this time $250 will be given away to contestants sending in the largest number of votes to be counted BETWEEN NOON WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, and NOON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6. The Bones of the Virgins.

After the cathedral has been visited, in Cologne one usually finds in Germany. Some students say that ancient Rome still survives in the faces of the natives of this ancient colony. One thing is certain: the colony clung to the ancient customs much longer than the other cities, for up to the very days when the French Revolution started an apish Gallic revival of old Roman standards, here in Cologne the leading citizens were still styled patricians, and the two Burgomasters were the popular toga and were attended by lictors while our ancestors were fighting at Saratoga and Yorktown.

Medieval Cologne.

It was in the Middle Ages, however, that Cologne came to its greatest glory, and a little later to its depths of decadence. It had no master save of its own choosing for the two centuries that ranged from the Thirteenth to the Fifteenth. Chief city of the Hanseatic League, it put an army of thirty thousand men into the field when it chose to go to war. It taxed and checked the flow of trade with England, Spain, Portugal and Italy. It was in truth "the Rome of the North." And even to-day it has what it had then—its carnival

Another Cash Competition.

The first cash prize competition was so successful that we have decided to offer another, and a better one. This time $250 will be given away to contestants sending in the largest number of votes to be counted BETWEEN NOON WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, and NOON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6. There will be SIX PRIZES in all, divided as follows:

For the largest vote $100.00
For the second largest 50.00
For the third largest 40.00
For the fourth largest 30.00
For the fifth largest 20.00
For the sixth largest 10.00

FOR

Tour-to-Europe Contestants.

In case of a tie, prizes will not be divided, but each contestant in a tie will be given the same cash prize.

Every contestant, irrespective of district or position in the battle, can compete for these prizes. The money goes to the ones who send in THE LARGEST NUMBER OF VOTES TO BE COUNTED IN THE TIME SPECIFIED. If you are holding back subscription orders rush them in at once, so that ballots may be forwarded to be filled out and returned in time to vote them in this cash competition.

Remember the dates: From noon Wednesday, May 30, to noon Wednesday, June 6. The vote as printed in the Courier-Journal, Thursday, May 31, and Thursday, June 7, will be the basis on which decision will be made.

$250 IS WORTH WORKING FOR.

Tour to Europe Ballot.

This Ballot Will Count One (1) Vote

For

Dist. No. Address

County State

When fully filled out and received at Courier-Journal office, by mail or otherwise, on or before expiration date shown above. Not good after that date. Void if name voted for has not been properly nominated. No ballot will be altered in any way, or transferred, after received by the Courier-Journal.

UNLESS THIS BALLOT IS TRIMMED CAREFULLY AROUND THE BLACK LINES, IT WILL NOT BE COUNTED.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS

On the way to five and a half million votes is the record of the Courier-Journal's Tour to Europe Popularity Contest this morning. In actual figures, the total vote is 5,257,734. During the past week nearly 800,000 votes were added in actual figures, 782,697. This tremendous vote was due in great measure to the $200 cash prize contest.

In quite a number of the districts the candidates have changed positions since last Sunday, due to the large vote cast in the prize competition. Miss Maud Hunter, District 11, leads the list, having secured more than two hundred thousand. Miss Alice Kohler, District 6, stands second with 196,159 to her credit. In the Eighth district Miss Annela Schwanninger reaches 150,034, having cast 10,588 for to-day's vote. The Fourth district, while not in the prize running, adds 4,208 in the sixteenth district the first three candidates are only about six thousand apart.

The total vote by districts is as follows:

District	Votes
First district	197,128
Second district	209,822
Third district	174,206
Fourth district	26,343
Fifth district	37,262
Sixth district	196,159
Seventh district	267,071
Eighth district	150,034
Ninth district	229,637

Seventeenth district	21,709
Eighteenth district	21,709
Nineteenth district	21,709
Twentieth district	21,709
Total	5,257,734

The big votes cast yesterday were the following:

District	Votes
First district	197,128
Second district	209,822
Third district	174,206
Fourth district	26,343
Fifth district	37,262

Twentieth district	21,709

Do not overlook the new cash prize competition for the week beginning May 30. There will be six cash prizes in all, ranging from $100 for the largest number of votes sent in down to $10 for the sixth largest. Orders should be rushed in early, so that ballots may be returned.

An Eastern paper that adopted the Courier-Journal's Tour to Europe plan prints the following novel suggestion: "Extra income and a chance to attend this campaign. In the East the popularity of one of the young ladies is such that her name has become a household word, and as prizes subscriptions to The News are given instead of the usual run of prizes, and the credit of the club is now turned over to their favorite candidate. This method is proving very popular, and as the club needs usually once a week in advance to the candidate and the interest this shows encourages others to do likewise and aid her in this popularity contest."

In response to the requests of several candidates now in the contest, the Courier-Journal has decided to alter the rule in regard to nominations. This original rule was that nominations would be received up to the last day of the contest. The rule is now changed, and no nominations will be received after June 1. Up to that date, however, nominations will be received in any district. Any young woman desiring to enter the contest can secure nomination blank by writing the Courier-Journal.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

Contestants and their friends and readers generally will save themselves worry and loss of time and the Courier-Journal much trouble and needless correspondence if they will observe the subscription rates set forth below. In every case subscriptions must be paid in advance, in full, or no ballots will be issued. This is imperative, no matter how the subscription is sent.

SYMPATHIZES.

Sorry For Man Whose Gas Is Cut Off.

BUT JUDGE GORDON ANNULS VERDICT IN HIS FAVOR.

NEW TRIAL FOR IRVING RICHARDSON'S DAMAGE SUIT.

TRIAL DOCKETS THIS WEEK.

Judge Gordon stated yesterday from the bench in joint session that he didn't blame a man for getting angry because his gas had been turned off suddenly and without warning. However, Judge Gordon was of the opinion that he did not believe a consumer who found himself in this predicament was entitled to punitive damages in the contemplation of the statute.

This ruling was made in the case of Lawrence Hawkins, who recently recovered $50 from the Louisville Gas Company because his gas had been cut off by mistake and he and his family were forced to eat their meals at a restaurant by their gas stove being placed out of commission. In Judge Gordon's view he did not believe the plaintiff could recover anything more than the price of the meals.

Injured In Auto Accident.

Irving Richardson, who was injured in the collision of an automobile and two street cars, and had failed to recover damages, was granted a new trial by Judge Field yesterday because of an error in instructions. The plaintiff was with Dr. J. W. Irwin when his automobile collided with two cars on April 2, 1905. For a time it was believed that Dr. Irwin had been killed. His suit against the Louisville Railway Company is still pending. Richardson had sued for $2,000.

New Trial Denied Mrs. O'Conner.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Conner, who sued the Louisville Railway Company for $3,000 damages because of injuries she received while getting off a car at Eighteenth street and Broadway, and who failed to recover, was refused a new trial by Judge O'Doherty yesterday. While dismounting from the step she alleges that she was tripped by the conductor putting his foot on her dress.

Court Paragraphs.

—The city sued J. W. Heeter to condemn his property, alleged to be worth $2,000, needed in extension of Edgewood avenue.

—Henry Fowler, a minor, brought suit in the name of his father against the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railroad Company for $3,000 damages, charging that he was wrongfully ejected from a train of the defendant.

DOUGLASS PARK AND BOULEVARD.

Among the captains of industry who laid the foundations for the wealth and expansion of Louisville no name stands more conspicuous than that of George L. Douglass.

While he passed away more than a quarter of a century ago, his memory is still cherished by many of our older citizens who were proud of his acquaintance and friendship.

Many years ago he was associated with Dr. Norvin Green, Mr. James Guthrie and others in the consolidation of the numerous independent telegraph companies operating in the West, and out of which was formed the present great Western Union Telegraph Company.

Mr. Douglass was one of the projectors and builders of the Short Line railroad to Cincinnati.

He was one of the promoters of Cave Hill cemetery and long on its board of directors. In banking and financial circles he was regarded with great respect and did much to benefit the city in his long and useful career.

He retired from active pursuits and spent the latter years of his life at his country home known as "Woodbourne" on the Bardstown turnpike, then a considerable distance in the country, but now near the city limits, so rapidly has Louisville extended its territory in the Highlands.

When Cherokee—or, as it is more frequently called, "Eastern Park"—was planned it was especially desired to include the beautiful valley of Beargrass creek, where its sinuous curves embrace the picturesque locality long known as "Big Rock" in its boulders, and by the munificence of Mrs. Sally Rutherford Carter, the only child of Mr. Douglass, a tract of land comprising about twenty acres and including "Big Rock," the ruins of "Ward's Mill," dating back to the eighteenth century, and by all who have seen it recognized as the most picturesque part of the most beautiful park in America, was presented to the city of Louisville. Next to the gift of Mr. Henry Davis for the improvement of Central Park, Mrs. Carter's gift is the most important contribution ever made by any individual to our park system and in acknowledgment of which the president of the

SPECIAL COMMITTEE TO MEET TO-MORROW

TO INVESTIGATE PURCHASE OF PROPERTY ON PEARL STREET.

SCHOOL BOARD ALLEGED TO HAVE PAID TOO MUCH FOR IT.

WITNESSES ARE SUMMONED.

The special committee, consisting of Phil B. Thompson, Marion W. Rippey and James Norton, appointed by President Edward J. Buechel, of the Louisville School Board, to investigate the purchase of the site for the new school for colored children on Pearl street, will begin taking evidence at the meeting to-morrow night. The meeting will be held at the office of the Louisville School Board, Miss Pauline Eckert has been selected as the official stenographer.

Marion W. Rippey, at whose instance the investigation was ordered, said yesterday that Mrs. Edmonia Shannon, of Leavenworth, from whom the property in question was purchased, had promised to testify at the investigation. Subsequent to the purchase, however, she has been heard from by Victor Van der Eep and George W. Hutchins, of the Louisville Title Company.

It is charged by Mr. Rippey in his resolution introduced in the School Board that Charles Cronan, the real estate agent who made the deal, sold the property to the School Board for $5,000, and that he only paid Mrs. Edmonia Shannon $3,000 for it. Mr. Rippey asserts that either Mrs. Shannon or the School Board is entitled to the $2,000, but in his opinion the School Board should be entitled to it from the fact that Cronan was acting as the agent of the School Board. Ben Stehlin, Jr., chairman of the Grievance Committee of the Louisville School Board, in whose hands the resolution is, has not called a meeting of the committee, but signifies that he will whenever Mr. Rippey desires a meeting. Mr. Rippey said that he had not had time to take the matter up with Mr. Stehlin, but probably would communicate with him in regard to the matter to-morrow.

When Raymond Haug, an instructor at the skating rink at Riverview Park, discovered a burglar in his room at his home, Shelby and Walnut streets, early yesterday morning, the burglar posed as Mr. Haug's brother. In response to a question as to where he had been, he replied: "To a dance." The disarmed Haug, of all suspicion, as he became convinced that it was his brother Carl, dropped off to sleep without giving further thought.

A few minutes later Mr. Haug was awakened by a noise produced by the burglar stumbling over a chair. The burglar ran when asked a question, and Haug, springing from bed, gave chase. He seized a lighted lamp from a dresser, and following the burglar to the head of the stairs, threw the lamp at him. The missile struck the burglar in the back and was shattered. The light was extinguished and the burglar made his escape by fleeing through the front door.

What deceived Mr. Haug was the fact that the burglar had discarded his own clothing and was attired in a new light

HOLDING COMPANY

ORGANIZED FOR CONVENIENCE
BY JOHN STITES AND J.
T. MALONE.

Two Pieces of Property Valued At Over $100,000 Conveyed To Company.

The Union Land Company has been organized by John Stites and John T. Malone as a holding company. They now own several pieces of valuable real estate in the city, and in order to prevent any complications that might occur in settlements Mr. Stites and Mr. Malone deemed it best to have their property held by a holding company. Two pieces of property were conveyed yesterday by Mr. Stites and Mr. Malone to the Union Land Company. The largest piece of property transferred yesterday is in Walnut street, beginning at the southwest corner of Third avenue and running west eighty-nine feet. This property is valued at about $75,000.

The other piece of property conveyed to the holding company fronts fifty-two and one-half feet on Jefferson street, between Fourth avenue and Fifth street, which is now occupied by the Adams Express Company. It is valued at about $25,000.

"The conveyance of this property," said Mr. Stites, "is a holding company of which Mr. Malone and I are the chief owners was simply for convenience and a matter of precaution should the estate of either of us have to be wound up. We have no intention of making any improvements on the property. We have satisfactory tenants, and they are, I presume, pleased with their quarters."

NEGROES ARRESTED ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

James Whitaker, nineteen years old; James Blackley, seventeen years old; and Robert Willis, eighteen years old, all colored, were arrested early yesterday morning near Tenth and Walnut streets, on charges of robbery by Patrolmen Gallagher and Reese.

It is alleged that the young negroes held up and robbed J. M. Patterson who lives at 1226 Twelfth street, on the night of April 20, taking $14 from him. It is alleged that one of the negroes held Patterson by the throat and another bound his hands, while a third rifled his pockets. The alleged robbery was committed at the mouth of an alley on Walnut street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

News of the Churches

EDITED BY A LEADING LOUISVILLE CHURCHMAN.

It is said in Presbyterian circles that there may be a lively contest in the General Assembly of that body when it meets in Des Moines, Ia., on May 31, over the new Book of Common Worship, which has been popularly termed the "Presbyterian Prayer Book." The reason that trouble is looked for is the fact that the new book has been issued by the official Board of Publication, not as the report of the Committee on Forms and Services, to be presented to the assembly, but in a small, cloth-bound book, in suitable size and form for use in the churches. Presbyterian leaders say that many of the forms and prayers in the book have not had the approval of the General Assembly, although the title page reads "Published by authority of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. For voluntary use in the churches."

Even those who favor the adoption of the Book of Worship by the Church say that the committee, of which the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke is chairman, and the Board of Publication have acted in a manner that is not in accordance with the authority given them by the General Assembly last year. This authority was given in a resolution which followed the presentation of the committee's report. This report was last year printed in pamphlet form, for the convenient reference of the assembly's commissioners, and in the pamphlet form were printed the forms and prayers prepared by the committee. By resolution these were recommended to the committee with certain instructions, and the resolution also empowered the Board of Publication to publish the Book of Worship during the year. "In order that the churches may have opportunity to consider and test the same."

It is now held that this permission to publish was intended to provide another pamphlet, similar to that of last year, and that a book in form for permanent use was never contemplated. But the resolution of the assembly did not specify the form publication was to take, and the consequence is that the Presbyterian Church has an official prayerbook. Dr. Van Dyke's committee, it is said, is likely simply to present the new book as their report and ask to be discharged, without seeking further approval of their work than was given last year.

In appearance the book of Common Worship is not unlike the Episcopal book of Common Prayer. Like the latter work it has orders of service for general and special occasions and many prayers. It is admitted even by Presbyterians who do not favor the book that the work of the committee has been ably done. Strongest opposition is looked for from the West, and it is considered likely that an effort will be made from that section to get the Assembly to repudiate the book. But Eastern influence will rally to its support, and it is freely predicted that the book will be in use in many Presbyterian churches of the East and Middle West before the end of the year.

The first steps have been taken toward the realization of Dr. Harlan's plan for a great Presbyterian minister or "Cathedral" at Washington, and although no decision has been made, it is believed that the site of the new church, when it is built, will be that now occupied by the New York Avenue church, which has a frontage on three streets. The Assembly's church has united with the New York church and will sell its property, but the proceeds of the sale are to be held by trustees until needed for the new church. It is expected that other downtown Washington churches will come into this union and help form the nucleus of a great church of national importance.

The churches of the country are much aroused on the subject of the large immigration of last year and are studying how best they may meet the problems that are involved in the spiritual care of the immigrants. It has just been pointed out by the Rev. Dr. J. N. Lenker, who belongs to the Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church of America, that Lutherans are well equipped for looking after the thousands of their faith who come each year to this country.

There are in this country, according to Dr. Lenker, 8,000 churches for German Lutherans, 4,300 for Scandinavians, 157 for Finns, 200 for Slovaks, 21 for Letts and Estonians, 37 for Icelanders, and many others for Poles, Bohemians and Magyars. As a matter of fact, says this authority, the problem is not so great now as it was in 1882 when immigration was also large, for the resources of the churches have been greatly increased in the twenty-four years.

From a study of the official immigration figures for 1905, Dr. Lenker divides the immigrants into three groups, the first comprising the people easiest to assimilate in American churches, the second less easy, and the third most difficult. In the first class he places the English, Scotch, Germans, Scandinavians, Irish, Finns, Letts and Slovaks. In the second division are Magyars, Bohemians, French and Ruthenians. And the third class, the most difficult to evangelize, are the Poles, the Italians and the Hebrews.

In the United Presbyterian church two important meetings are to be held this month. The first is the meeting of the "General Committee on Home Missions," to be held at Springfield, Ohio, on May 18, and the second meeting, which convenes at Richmond, Indiana, on the twenty-third.

The General Committee on Home Missions is an umbrella organization, which represents the church, large or small, has equal representation in the central board of Home Missions. Every claim made that the mission problems of anyone is overlooked, or slighted in the General Assembly, and its acts are ineffective until the Assembly shall have approved them. But it is found in practice that the Assembly seldom makes material changes. A Board of Home Missions is also provided, but it is essentially a committee of the General Committee.

The General Assembly is the Supreme Court of United Presbyterians. This year's session promises to be unusually important because of the pressing matters to be considered. Missions and their support promise to be considered of paramount importance, but it is held to be likely that the several federal plans to be presented will also take much of the Assembly's time. One of these plans relates to the federation of all American Presbyterian bodies, and the other is the question of United Presbyterian membership in the Federal Council provided for in the plan adopted last fall by the Interchurch Conference in New York, which was attended by delegates from twenty or more churches, including the United Presbyterian.

The American Bible Society had its annual meeting the other day, observing in a quiet way, the ninetieth anniversary of its organization. Officials and members congratulated each other on the fact that the society has pulled itself out of the bad financial hole into which it seemed to be sinking earlier in the year, and the treasurer reported a comfortable cash balance to be carried over to the new fiscal year.

This balance does not, however, replace the reserve fund which the Bible Society had a few years ago and which has been entirely used up. But it is better than a debt of $75,000 which, six months ago, seemed a certainty. Total receipts for the year were reported as close to $500,000. Largest items of receipts were from legacies, gifts from individuals, offerings from churches and gifts from auxiliaries. The society has invested trust funds amounting to over half a million dollars, providing an income of about $20,000. There is also a special trust fund of over $20,000, the income of which can only be used to supply the Scriptures in raised letters for the blind.

The total issues of the scriptures for the year, as shown by the society's report, were at home and abroad, 2,267,735. Of these 240,367 were issued from the Bible House in New York, and 1,997,368 from the society's agencies abroad, being printed on a mission press in China, Japan, Siam, Syria and Turkey. These figures show an increase over a year ago amounting to 465,269, and are the largest in the society's history. The total issues of the society in ninety years amount to 38,523,235.

The Episcopal Church is making, under Bishop Knight, marked progress in Cuba, and is finding that the difficulties of churches in most of the Caribbean cities, Havana, with a population of nearly 300,000, has but nineteen Roman churches; Matanzas, with 30,000 people, has six; Santiago, with 80,000, has the same number; and towns like Guanamao, with 8,000 people, will have one church. So there is little conflict.

about three times as many as were maintained by Episcopalians when he took up the work.

In extending his work beyond Havana, Matanzas and Bolondron, at which points services were maintained before he went to Cuba, Bishop Knight has selected important centers like Camaguey, Santiago and Guantanamo. The population of Cuba, it is noted, is largely centered in towns and cities, there being on the island more than forty important centers with populations of from 2,000 to 85,000. Spanish speaking clergy and more adequate financial support are the present needs.

There is said to be little or no interference by the Episcopal missions with the existing Roman Catholic work, for there is ample room for all religious bodies now working on the island. Mr. John W. Wood, one of the secretaries of the Episcopal Mission Board, recently made a tour of Cuba, and on his return said he was struck with the small number of churches in most of the Cuban cities. Havana, with a population of nearly 300,000, has but nineteen Roman churches; Matanzas, with 30,000 people, has six; Santiago, with 80,000, has the same number; and towns like Guanamao, with 8,000 people, will have one church. So there is little conflict.

Episcopalians also maintain four schools in Cuba, two in Havana and one each in Matanzas and Guantanamo.

Friends in considerable numbers will assemble at Wilmington College, Wilmington, O., in the closing days of July for two meetings. The first will be the convention of the Friends' International Christian Endeavor Union, which is held once in five years. The date for this meeting would fall in 1907, but as the World's Christian Endeavor Convention is fixed for that year, the Quakers decided to hold their meeting this summer. The convention will last two days.

It will be immediately followed by the convention of the Friends' Bible Institute, which is conducted by the Indiana, Western and Wilmington yearly meetings. The institute has been at work nine years and has already demonstrated its large usefulness. At the coming convention of the institute there will be taken up the problems of preaching and evangelism, with the object of fixing, if possible, upon better methods than are now in use among Friends. The work of other religious bodies will be studied for suggestion.

The Cumberland Presbyterians are entering upon an effort to remove the debt of about $35,000 which rests upon their Board of Missions, being spurred on by the fact that union with the large Northern Presbyterian body is altogether likely to be consummated, and they do not like the idea of turning over their missionary enterprises with a deficit.

In the Cumberland Church there is but one Board of Missions, and it cares for foreign and domestic missions as well as church erection and from statement made by officials of the board it is evident that funds for these three purposes have not always gone in the right proportion to which they were designated by the donors. This was no secret, however, and has been approved by the General Assembly of the Cumberland Church.

The receipts of the board for the year just closed were $72,828, $11,900 more than the previous year. Besides this amount there were contributions for synodical missions and to the Woman's Board, bringing the grand total for last year for mission purposes up to $138,742, an advance of $32,130 on the previous year. The effort now to be made is to carry on the work (Ill. May, 1907) when union with the larger body is expected to go into effect and raise also a sum sufficient to wipe out the debt. The foreign missions maintained by the Cumberland Presbyterians are in Mexico, Japan and China.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew and Philip, the interdenominational organization for men, has just celebrated its eighteenth birthday, and while progress has been steady ever since organization, the officers are by no means satisfied with what has been accomplished. At the same time the strength of the movement is shown by the fact that there are now 82 chapters, organized in twenty-four different denominations, with a total membership of 38,340 men. There are also forty-two boys' chapters with over twelve hundred members.

The founder of the organization, the Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Miller, of Philadelphia, is now the president of its Federal Council. When the Brotherhood was formed there was but one church in this country, the Episcopal, which had a flourishing men's organization, and the plan was to form on much the same plan as the Episcopal Brotherhood of St. Andrew, except that it had the interdenominational feature which enabled its leaders to claim it to be the first practical evidence of church federation.

"A SHOT!" CRIES POLICE CHIEF, AND "BLUECOATS" GET BUSY

Early Morning Quiet Disturbed By Volley That Caused No Fatalities.

It wasn't the bewitching hour of midnight, when spirits are supposed to be low and eyes drowsy—it was later, just 2:40 o'clock yesterday morning, to be exact—and at the Central police station everybody was leaning back in his chair trying to get a catnap before the clock should strike three bells, when all good police officers go out to make their rounds.

Major Ridge, night Chief of Police, was watching the clock furiously, fearing lest he should miss his car; Sergeants Doran and Hutchins were making manly efforts to keep their eyes open, and at intervals they shifted their positions, the more to ward off the somnolent effects of Morpheus, while the two or three newspaper men on his early rounds were busily engaged in reading—what there is no use telling.

The black and white cat that has claimed the station as her home since she became the mother of four kittens passed softly and climbed upon the large table that sits in the middle of the room, while old "John," the negro janitor, had just limped his way slowly into the assembly-room on his early morning cleaning up round.

That it was that conditions were ideal for the rule awakening that occurred. The limbs of the law were doubtless then dreaming of "long shots" that would bring them wealth on the morrow if they should awake in time to go to Churchill Downs, while old "John" was softly crooning as he went about his work, suddenly the quiet that had reigned throughout the night outside was broken by a report that could only come from a firearm of large caliber. Instantly everyone in the room was attention.

"That's a shot!" spoke Maj. Ridge sharply. "Hurry out, men; it sounded as if it came from Fifth and Jeff."

"Something doing, sure," came from one of the newspaper reporters, who had just dropped his paper and darted out of the door ahead of the policemen, who separated and started in the best sort of run they could simulate, while up and down the street other patrolmen could be seen hurrying and scurrying up alleys and around corners.

Out Sixth street to Jefferson the crowd went, and on to Fifth. Further up the street a little knot of people was seen in the middle of the street car tracks, and it was plain to all that the source of the fusillade had been discovered, for after the first report there came another, and shortly afterward several more, until anybody within hearing would have sworn that a pitched battle was in progress.

Redoubting their speed the police detachment soon reached the scene, and with drawn revolvers and nightsticks upheld, they prepared for a desperate encounter, for the shooting continued until they reached the spot.

"Clear the way here," ordered Maj. Ridge, while his men shoved spectators right and left.

With characteristic regard for the law the spectators gave way and Maj. Ridge reached the spot where he expected to pick up one or more dead bodies, but there was nothing of the kind there. Standing in a determined of the duo dinkie on the ding dong had been elaborated, and as a natural consequence the jiffing pin worked loose, preventing the machine from progressing.

Incidentally there were a few very fervent words breathed by the officers when they reached the station again, and they were directed at a rapidly increasing class of persons vulgarly called "shuffers."

TO MEET OUTLAY OF PRIVATE CHARITY INSTITUTIONS.

PERSONAL APPEALS AND USE OF PRESS SUGGESTED.

WALTER UFFORD'S ADDRESS.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 12.—Among the topics discussed to-day at the section meeting of the thirty-third national conference of charities and corrections were charitable finance, care of the sick and child labor. In a paper on the first topic Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Federated Charities, Baltimore, proposed three plans for raising money to meet the outlay of private societies and institutions.

First, annual reports.

Second, personal appeals through collectors.

Third, use of the press.

In simplifying these methods, Mr. Ufford said:

"Among the various forms of printed appeals should be counted the solicited or institutions' annual reports, and all supporters of the charity; also annual reminders in the form of letters or printed invitations asking a renewal of financial support given in previous years; short stories illustrating the kind and value of the work performed. "If collectors are employed they should work upon salary, not upon commission, and as a rule, should be members of the regular staff, thoroughly cognizant with the work and able to make a clear presentation of its merits. The third method, available for certain localities, thanks to the courtesy of the press, is the gratuitous use of the public mail, by being kept informed of the work in hand and its financial requirements. The value of paid advertisements in charity work is a subject which should be discussed by this session.

It is worth our while to consider whether, after all, we have not outgrown the method of separate appeal in financing our charitable work; whether we cannot learn a lesson from the experience of the Federated Jewish Charities of Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis and other cities, and devise a method of co-operative appeal. By that means a systematic canvass of the entire business and social community may be conducted, thus securing contributions without something of the certainty and regularity with which a city obtains its public revenues. Under this plan of pooling charitable financial interests it has been demonstrated that the work of money raising can be made thoroughly educational, with the result that more interest is aroused and consequently more money obtained and individual charities more generously supported than by the method of individual appeal."

The care of the sick was discussed by Dr. Mathias Nicoll, Jr., New York; Miss Charlotte Allen, superintendent of Columbus Hospital, Pittsburg, and Miss Annie Danner, of the Bellevue and All-Hospital, New York.

A general discussion of the child-labor question was participated in by a number of factory inspectors and practical workers.

LOADED FREIGHT CARS IN WRECK ON C. AND O.

Cars Leave Track At Same Point Where One Fatal Crash Occurred.

Owingsville, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—A west bound freight on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad jumped the track at Preston, this county, last night, and nine cars were wrecked, some of them being smashed to splinters and all piled together in a shape that made it impossible to move them.

Two of the cars were loaded with sugar in bags and barrels which was strewn along the track for two hundred yards, and almost a total loss. Two cars were loaded with hardware which was scattered along the track and through the woods for half a mile. One carload of soldiers' clothing was also scattered on the ground. Other cars were loaded with valuable freight, much of which will be lost as it lies in their work early and late despite the watchmen. This accident took place on the spot where cars left track, overturned and burned conductor Miller to death, a few weeks ago.

MRS. WALTER SHARP

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—News reached here that Mrs. Nettie Elgin Sharp, wife of Walter Sharp, the "Tobacco King," was suddenly stricken with paralysis at her home 11 Shippensburg to-day, and her life is despaired of. Mrs. Sharp is about forty-seven years old and one of the most widely known and highly respected women in the State. She was in this city shopping Friday, and seemed in usual good health.

EVIDENCE MISSING IN CELEBRATED CASE.

Was Against the Alleged Bridge Trust and Has Mysteriously Disappeared.

Lima, O., May 12.—County Prosecutor Webber has created a sensation here by the declaration that when the grand jury sought to look into the bridge contracts with the Bellefontaine Bridge Company, every scrap of written evidence was found to be missing. The records are said to have disappeared within the past few days or since the grand jury opened its investigation into the bridge trust. The contracts that have disappeared are claimed to be important as they show a bridge pool or combine.

WILL BEGIN DRILLING TWELVE NEW GAS WELLS.

Makes Some Notable Comparisons Between Women and Men, and Between American Women and English Women—Former the Most Brilliant and Beautiful.

DR. EMIL REICH
THE HUNGARIAN SAVANT WHOSE LECTURES ON PLATO, DELIVERED TO AUDIENCES COMPOSED LARGELY OF DEBESSES, HAVE ATTRACTED SO MUCH ATTENTION.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]
LONDON, May 3.—One of the most brilliant discoveries said to have been made by Dr. Emil Reich, the Hungarian savant, who has suddenly become the social fad in London, is that society women have brains—lots of brains. This sensational conclusion is the result of his studies of Duchesses, Countesses and titled personages, American and English, who crowded to Claridge's to hear the learned doctor indulge in all sorts of up-to-date philosophy, more or less apropos of Plato—for, while the Duchesses listen to the doctor, the doctor studies the Duchesses, with a shrewd and twinkling eye.

Many cases they are the intellectual superiors of men. This may especially be said of American women, but it applies with equal force to English women as well. Of course, the attitude of the women in the respective countries is entirely different. For instance, he continued, "the American woman thinks only of herself—and, of herself. To her man is a mere writer of checks, a getter of money for her to spend, as she thinks fit, on her personal adornment, her social upbuilding or her ambition. She patronizes and tolerates the man, merely because she needs him in her business; but otherwise, he is no more in her thoughts than any other object created and invented for her special advantage."

"But, however we may judge the American woman or her English cousin, we cannot get away from the fact that both of them have very superior intellects, only differing in their individual point of view. Judging the American society woman from my personal contact with her, from a residence of some years in that country, I would say that the American woman of to-day resembles the Roman matrons of old, who cared only for themselves, and nothing for their husbands or their country. The American woman does not care for children or the family; she wishes to avoid the duties of the mother; and men are to her, as I have said again and again, nothing but a means to an end—and that end her own aggrandizement. With all her ambition, however, the American woman is not a superior woman by any means as compared to women of other countries. All American women have dreams of being wealthy, and no matter how poor they are, should their husband 'strike luck' they immediately begin to put on airs and make a great show. This is not the case with women of other nationalities. The English and French women are more domestic. They love their homes, their husbands, their children. They do not have dreams of ambition such as the American women indulge in; and if the French or English women's husbands suddenly become immensely wealthy, it does not effect a radical, overwhelming change in the women themselves. But all American women, no matter how poor they are, are potentially the same. Give them the chance to be rich, and they cannot resist showing their true colors."

"Where the American woman shows her superiority over women of other nationalities—particularly the English—is her splendid personal physique. It is an immense asset, and wins for her many conquests. The American woman commands more respect; and deference and respect are to her what ozone is to the breathing apparatus. With these immense assets to her credit, the American woman spoils everything by her overweening love of sensation and personal ambition."

"As a matter of fact," continued Dr. Reich, speaking with his characteristic torrential flow of words, "I have discovered that women in England—and society women at that—not only have as much intellectual force as men, but they have more brain power. They are more logical, more practical, more businesslike, and more authoritative. Men believe in nothing but precedent, they are averse to novelty, over conservative, and especially specialistic. In every line of thought men build up for themselves one standard, to which everything else must conform. In biology, he looks to and swears by Darwin; in English history, it is Stubbs and Freeman; in philosophy, Green and Herbert Spencer; and it takes a man twenty-five years to recognize, in any one of these lines, the advent of a new force."

"Now with women—and I speak of the intelligent society women—they display far more intellectual nimbleness—more flair—judgment, intuition, initiative—are far less prejudiced, and far quicker to recognize merit as soon as it presents itself. Women have far more esprit than men. And this last quality is one of the reasons why the men hate them."

"Could you give some instances of women's actual superiority, doctor?" I asked, hurriedly, slipping the query in sideways.

"Well, take literary style," he replied, quickly. "women in England write far better prose than men. Mrs. Browning's Portuguese Sonnets have never been equaled by anything written by man. In prose, the Englishman writes heavy, cumbersome, unequal stuff; whereas, if you take the trouble to look into any woman's paper of the day, you will find really excellent writing, far better than anything a man could do."

"How do you account for this particular fact?" I asked.

"Because, as a rule, in England," replied the doctor, "women are far better linguists than men. They are good French scholars; while numbers of them have a command of Italian and German. Women in England are not only better educated than the men, but they have more leisure—not going into business, and forgetting all their schooling—men do—they have more opportunity to improve themselves."

THE NEW RULERS OF FRANCE

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]
PARIS, May 3.—France has another "great Cabinet." The ministry now in power in succession to the fallen regime of M. Rouvier is considered one of the staunchest collection of capable personalities, if not the strongest, of all the seventy Cabinets in the chequered republican career of modern France.

Jean Marie Ferdinand Sarrien, the new Prime Minister and President of the Council, was born in 1849, and has passed about half his life in public affairs beginning as Mayor of his native town, Bourbon-Lancy in 1873. In 1875 he was elected a deputy and has remained one, with slight intervals of interruption ever since. He has always been allied with the conservative republican group in politics along with such men as Rouvier, Bourgeois, Waldeck-Rousseau, Charles Dupuy and Henri Brisson, though among them he and Rouvier alone have been distinguished by having no favorite political hobby to threaten their career. Sarrien has always been interested in public instruction, and in 1877 succeeded in getting an amendment bearing his name tacked onto a bill providing 21,000,000 francs for free schools throughout the country. This is one of his greatest services to France.

In 1885 he became Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, but remained in office only a short time, the Cabinet being overthrown. Soon after he occupied successively the portfolios of Minister of Interior in the Freycinet Cabinet, and Minister of Justice in the ministry of the late Rene Goblet. This is the first time he has been Premier. Sarrien is a vigorous old man, with great courage and pluck, but is little of an orator. He can be counted on to show great determination, but no brilliancy. He is criticized for allowing Clemenceau to take the portfolio of the Interior because Clemenceau is a well-known militant agnostic, who will have little feeling in carrying out the conditions of the separation of church and State, but his friends point out that it would have been impossible to get a majority in the Chamber for Sarrien or any other republican Cabinet without the support of Clemenceau's powerful friends in the Chamber, and Clemenceau himself in the Senate. The notion, however, propagated somewhat widely abroad, that the new Cabinet will be a Clemenceau ministry in fact and a Sarrien government in name, is very wide from the mark. Sarrien's parliamentary announcement declares that he proposes to carry out the church separation law according to legislation, but with as much tact as possible, and then to turn his attention to the anti-militarist agitators and to the question of the State functionary organization. If he manages to retain the confidence of the Chamber until the Separation Bill excitement is over the chances of long life for his Cabinet will be very good.

Leon Bourgeois, replacing his friend Rouvier at the head of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, is one of the most distinguished men in France. He is a Parisian and but thirty-five, after a brilliant education, both academic and legal, he turned his attention to politics and was at once given a high post at the Ministry of Public Works. He has been successively under-secretary of one or more of the Ministries, Prefect of Tarn, Prefect of Police in Paris, Deputy Senator, Minister of the Interior, Minister of Public Instruction and the chairman of several most important parliamentary committees.

Bourgeois represented France at the Peace Congress in The Hague, where he acted as president of that body. For a few years past, though still of really in public life, he has been sorely tried by the loss of all only daughter and by other family afflictions. His acceptance of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs has pleased every sound-thinking Frenchman, for Bourgeois can be depended on to abate no jot or tittle of France's dignity in her dealings with Germany at the present moment, and indeed to exhibit, perhaps, more cleverness in general diplomacy than his predecessor, Rouvier, who was always more than ready to let Bourgeois handle the difficult situation.

Bourgeois is a tall, rather stout person, with a good figure and a fine voice. He is a fair orator, but has nothing of the spectacular element about his public speaking. His main interests are in questions relating to higher education, and upon this and other more technical university subjects he has written thoughtfully and well. He is a conservative Republican, and though he is friendly with all of the group who are credited with a desire completely to "de-Britannize France," his intimacy is rather a philosophical than a political one. Bourgeois is not a Christian, nor is he an atheist, but he is a free thinker in an agnostic question. He belongs to the emancipated type of philosopher-statesman more familiar in Germany than here.

IDEA FOR ANCIENT SKYSCRAPER.
THE grandest architectural idea, "said a skyscraper builder," was that of Dinocrates of Macedonia. A forty-story structure is a "trifling" Dinocrates' dream.

"This man went to King Alexander and proposed that he should carve Mount Athos into the statue of a man with a city in one hand, and a basin in the other, a basin which should receive all the waters of the mountain, and again discharge them into the sea."

"What a dream was that! A statue so huge that it would actually hold a city and a basin in its hand. I'm sorry Alexander didn't let Dinocrates carry out his idea."

THE MISTERY OF A CAMERA.
[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]
LONDON, May 3.—An astounding story of mysterious photographs is vouched for by a well-known London photographer. A certain young lady, who may be called Miss B., lives with her mother in one of the Home Counties. Some time ago, wishing to have her photograph taken, she made an appointment with the photographer in question. The sitting was duly given, and the photograph taken.

After the lapse of a week Miss B. received a letter saying that the photos were not a success and asking for another sitting. She at once agreed, and as soon as possible went to London again, and a second photograph was taken.

A short time elapsed, and as no proofs were sent, she wrote to make inquiries, only to receive a very apologetic letter saying that again the photos were failures, and asking for a third sitting.

The effect of this experience was so great that after a few days she wrote word to her mother to send her to India breaking off the engagement.

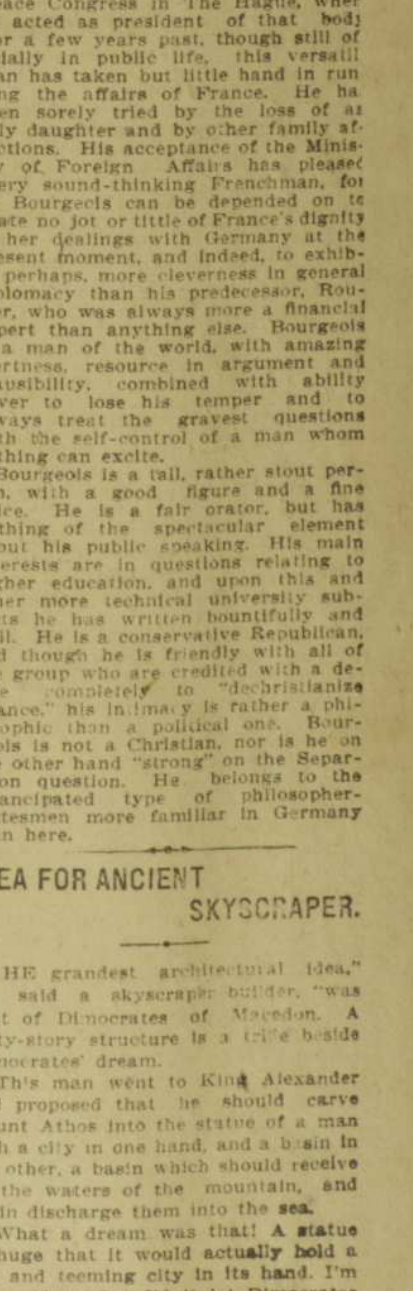

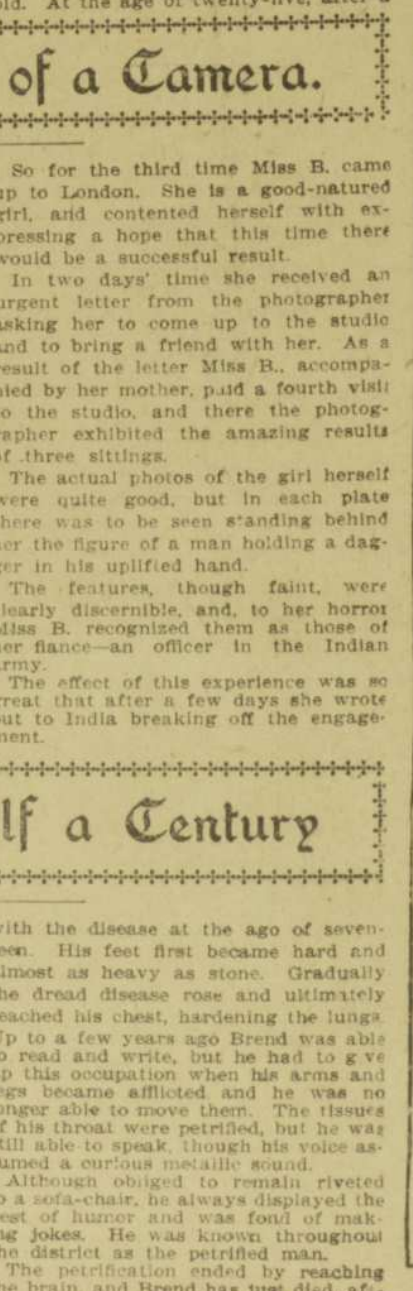

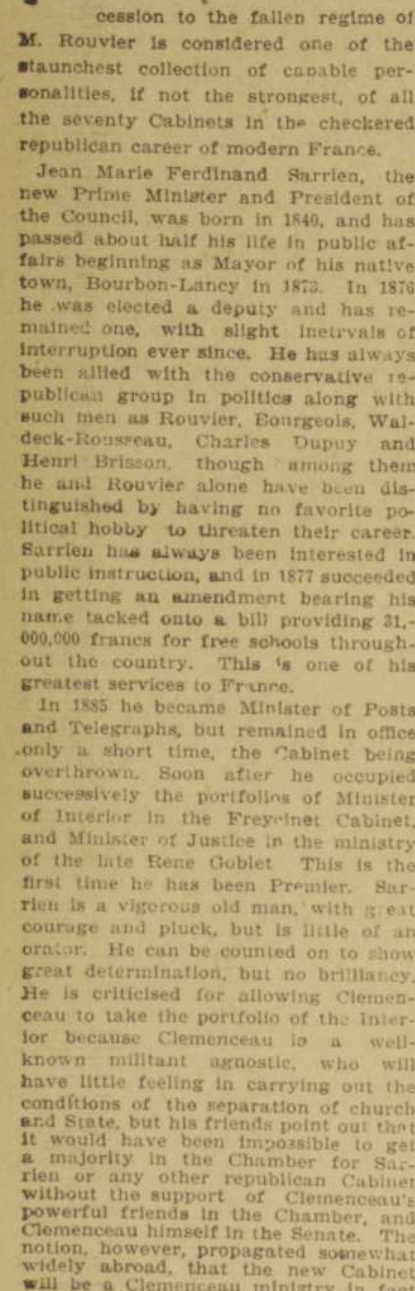

Petrified Half a Century
[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]
PARIS, May 3.—There has just died at the Hospital of Ueberlingen, on the borders of Lake Constance, in Switzerland, says the Petit Temps, a stone man. His name was Brend. He was afflicted with the very rare disease known as myositis ossificans. The extraordinary feature of this disease is that ossification gradually sets in all the muscles and tissues of the body, the disease invariably ending in death.

Brend was sixty-six years of age. He was the son of a well-to-do farmer of Baden-Baden. He was first afflicted with the disease at the age of seven.

His feet first became hard and almost as heavy as stone. Gradually the dread disease rose and ultimately reached his chest, hardening the lungs. Up to a few years ago Brend was able to read and write, but he had to give up this occupation when his arms and legs became afflicted and he was no longer able to move them. The tissues of his throat were petrified, but he was still able to speak, though his voice assumed a curious metallic sound.

Although obliged to remain riveted to a sofa-chair, he always displayed the best of humor and was fond of making jokes. He was known throughout the district as the petrified man.

The petrification ended by reaching the brain, and Brend has just died, after nearly fifty years of suffering.

"The first—and the least important—step is to get rid of all the dust. Beat the furs well and hang them in the sun and air all day. Next day beat and sun again to make assurance surer, and without delay envelope them in clean newspapers, after filling the pockets of the cloak with camphor balls, and putting some of the same into the muff and sleeve. A Pretty Way of Serving with the Shells on

When you do serve it, beat the cream to a soft mass with a little sweet cream, and mix in a little of the strawberry berries in a prim row around the base. Then add the strawberries in small bunches and kinds, from the old-fashioned ones made of real shortcakes piled high with cream, to the new ones made of a mix of rich cake and berries, with a little cream. The strawberries may be served hot or cold, with plain cream, or with a little cream and sugar and sugar by way of a sauce.

For the shortcake, here's a recipe (contributed by a man who prides himself upon his skill as a cook) for a strawberry shortcake:

Take one cup of sugar, one cup of a strawberry shortcake: one cup of short and one cup of butter. The short is short and unsweetened. Cake dough is made by creaming the butter and sugar.

"In preparing the strawberries be sure to wash them in cold water, and drain them well. If you have a large bowl, other bowl ever gives quite the same

A Washday Lunchtime Dish.

Make three cups of good well-seasoned tomato sauce, thickened with a heaping tablespoon of butter. Boil for 10 minutes. Add butter. Keep hot in a double boiler set over steam.

Toast slices of bread, butter them, spread with tomato sauce, and top with a heaping tablespoon of tomato sauce on each. Into the remainder of the tomato sauce, put the rest of the butter, stir until the saucepan over the fire, stir until the butter is melted. Add the tomato to the saucepan and pour upon the toast.

Another Cleaning Problem Solved.

Tell "Mrs. J. C." that if the hood in her kitchen is soiled with grease, she can clean it for her children as made of so much new soap. She can use the soap as much satisfaction as to use for the "old" soap.

Make a good sauce and let the hood be clean. Use the soap for the hood and rinse in a clean warm water. The soap is so good that it will be just as nice as a new one for the children. The soap is so good for the children, and it will help them.

Three ways to make the Foundation for Dumping, No. 1: Mix thoroughly with one quart of flour, three teaspoonsful of baking powder and one small teaspoonful of salt. Rub in a piece of butter or lard the size of an egg, and then add one medium-sized potato, grating it into the flour. After the butter is well mixed, stir in sufficient milk to knead to the consistency of biscuit dough. Break off pieces of the dough, fill with strawberries, raspberries or blackberries and steam in a earthen dish until the dough is cooked through. Serve with braised sauce.

No. 2: Measure six cups and line with a dough made as described above. Wash the sides of the cup with water and cover with the paste. Put in shallow stewpan with boiling water reaching up to the sides of the cup. Boil for one hour. Turn out on a heated dish, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve with a spicy sauce.

No. 3: Make the following paste: Three cups of sifted flour, two cups of cold water, one egg, and a pinch of salt. Have the ingredients thorough-ly cold. Sift flour on a pastry board and add the water, egg and salt. Turn over the hand. Place the dough in the center and the salt. Add a small quantity of ice water and trodder the dough. When the dough is soft, the flour, adding more ice water, till it is a time, as may be necessary, making it soft and elastic. The dough should be smooth, light and tenuous. Place it in an ice box fifteen minutes and then roll it out on a floured dinner plate. Next lay the butter on the dough over the edges of the dough. Turn the dough over and roll out very thin. Turn again. Fold over three times and roll again. Repeat this three times placing in a thin tin on ice for a few minutes. Then roll out very thin and the paste thin for the last time. Cut into eight squares of four inches each. Put two teaspoons of butter on each square. Press the corners of the squares and the same amount of butter on and bring the four corners over to the top. Slightly so they will stick together. Stir with a fork. Bake in a baking tin, cooking in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. Serve with a spicy sauce.

Rice Dumpling.—Wash half a pint rice in several cold waters and throw into a kettle of boiling water. Cook quickly for twenty minutes, and drain off the water. Have ready six squares of perfectly clean cheese cloth, and lay them out flat on a table. Dip the rice in the water, and squeeze out the thickness of half an inch. In the center of this place half a canned pepper, and tie the cloth around it, from which the juice has been removed. Then tie the cloth, which the stone has been taken with rice, put over this the other half of the cloth, and tie the corners of the cloth together tightly with a piece of thread. As soon as all are ready, throw into a kettle of boiling water, and cook for twenty minutes. When done remove the cloths, put the dumplings on a dish and serve with a sauce of oil, vinegar, and pepper, whichever you may have used.

Curra Dumplings—Chop fine half a pound of beef suet. Put in a basin with four tablespoonfuls of flour, a pound of bread crumbs, half a pound of sugar and half a pound of clean currants. Mix these together well and stir in a cup of milk. Dip the center of a piece of cloth in boiling water, wring out and dredge with flour. Now spread the floured cloth over the top of a basin, pour the dumpling into it, tie up with a piece of strong twine and throw in boiling water. The water must be boiling furiously before the pudding is thrown in, and half a tablespoonful of salt added. Cook steadily and evenly for Lemon Dumplings—Chop one pound of beef suet very fine. Mix with half a pound of grated bread crumbs, a quarter of a pound of sugar and the grated rind of one lemon. Beat together well with two beaten eggs. Turn in separate dumpling cloths and cook for three-quarters of an hour.

Apple Dumplings—Mix and sift one pint of flour, one cup of sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of milk, one cup of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Add one cup of finely chopped suet and mix to a firm dough with just enough water to make it roll. Roll out half an inch thick. Put a filling of apples over a bowl and spread the crust on top. Fill with gooseberries and their weight of sugar. Tie the cloth up, leaving Farina Dumpling.—Bring one quart of milk to a boil, stir in ten ounces of farina, and boil until done, stirring constantly. Allow this to cool and add one teaspoonful of salt. When ready to serve, mix with three eggs well beaten. Lastly, add one half pound of sifted flour, one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Drop a tablespoonful at a time into boiling, salted water, cooking each spoonful twenty minutes. Take up on a skimmer and serve with strawberries mashed together and straw-berried.

Lastly a word about the half made box frocks, which come in a number of materials rarely seen by the yard. Home dressmaking is made positive play when these come into the question, for trimmed, fussed to the last de-

Linen, pique, duck, point d'esprit, fancy net, etc., are some recognizable materials. One dainty sort of cotton point d'esprit with satin ribbon edges for innumerable little frills, was ticketed $15.50. Others

And think what a saving this is! Finally, if the entire ready-made thing is needed, the juvenile outfits make a specialty of commencement frocks.

PIGEON FAKING.

THE bird fancier took a young pigeon's beak between his finger and thumb.

"If I was a pigeon faker," he said, "I'd make this beak curve downward more. Every day I'd bend it this way, while it's young and soft, and when the bird would grow up it would have a beak of the correct shape. Before then, though, it would have passed through a lot of pain."

"Pigeon fakers are pretty numerous. They have tricks that will add $25 and

"A trick is trimming." They cut out feathers of the desired color, and with the aid of the colorers they manipulate certain markings till they get them into the pattern that is considered best.

"They dye the birds' feathers, too. This work needs skill and a good recipe. Judges, being fey, often touch a few colored feathers with their hands, and see if the color is fixed or not. So the dyes, of course, must be acid-proof."

"Some men take young almond tumbler birds and pair them off for a couple of hours each day in a wooden mold. This causes their heads to grow into the shape of an almond. The prize-winning almond tumblers' heads must have the shape of an almond."

"Pigeon faking carried to excess, is cruelest. The cruelty societies ought to put a stop to it. How can they, though, eh? It isn't done in public,

A PAGE FOR BOYS and GIRLS

Our Own Corner

THIS department is being conducted for all kinds of contributions from the children. Original poems, jingles, compositions, smart sayings of children, original drawings, puzzles, etc.—in fact, anything interesting that the readers of this page will send in—will be published. Contributions from the children are asked, and should be addressed to "Our Own Corner," Children's Page, Courier-Journal. Write on one side of the paper only. New headings for this department are desired, and the best and most original ones sent in will be used at the top of this department. Do not make them too large.

The heading for this department this week was drawn and originated by Kernan Bedford, Owensboro, Ky.

NOTICE

The editor wishes to caution the contributors to this department not to send any but original work, either in compositions, puzzles, drawings, poems or anything else.

Remember that you have no right to sign your name to anything that is not original, so be very careful in this matter.

Be sure to mark your contributions each time with the word "original."

In sending in contributions to the Children's Page, always write on one side of the paper only, and sign your name and address legibly at the bottom of the contribution.

Martha's Dream

CHAPTER I

It was a lovely place, where little Martha lived. In the midst of the forest her mother's cottage stood, with its green blinds and sloping roof. Though few travelers passed that way, Martha was happy with lying on the velvet grass and waiting for those few to traverse the tiny footpath that led to town.

One day when Martha was lying in this favorite place—where was truly a beautiful one—she heard the rustle of the wind through the oak trees, and listening intently, seemed to distinguish the voice of either the wind or the leaves, she knew not which, addressing her thus: "Look, Martha, some travelers come."

Sure enough, there were two tiny creatures coming toward her. They seemed to be talking rapidly, and Martha tried to hear what they said as they passed.

"If mortals only knew of Operatown they would flock there; for there is no such grandeur or happiness any place else," said the first.

"But," said the second, "if mortals knew they would crowd the Operatowns, every one."

"I wish that little Martha, who lives in that house, knew we were on our way there; for she could tell no mortals but her mother," the first continued.

"There is no hope of that, for none of the messengers will come here again for a year and a day," said the second.

Martha was surprised to hear them speak of her, but was even more so to see them turn and walk directly to the old oak nearest her. They walked around the tree three times, when a little door flew open and they entered, she close at their heels.

Since the inside of this tree was composed entirely of mirrors, she was soon discovered and addressed thus by the Key of C, this being the name of one of these Operatown messengers: "Ah, Miss Martha, delighted to see you here, but tell me, what do you want?"

Martha was frightened at being discovered so soon, but she answered boldly: "I heard you and your companions."

talking, sir, about the beautiful land of Operatown, and I thought you wouldn't mind if I came too." "Certainly not, certainly not," said the Key of D—the other messenger—"you are welcome to visit us. I know my friend, Key of C, has no objections to your living in our staff with us."

"I wonder what he means by his staff," thought Martha, though she had little time to think it, for they were soon in the land of Operatown.

They were not long in reaching the king's palace, where Martha was introduced to King Tannhauser. She was very much pleased with his name, and she felt that she was in a very important position.

The Tennis Girl

Imagine the delight she felt, when the king walked across the floor to meet her, and in doing so, played selections from the opera he was named for. All the nobles were named for operas, and like King Tannhauser, played selections from those, when they walked.

"Miss Martha, as you are a mortal, I guess you don't know how it feels to be composed," said the Key of C. "I felt simply glorious when Verdi composed me."

"Well," said the Bohemian Girl, who was Travatore's wife, "I have never been as happy as when Balfe composed me."

Martha thought this couple very comical, but all the nobles talked of their composers. Olivette talked of Andran; Pinafore thought she was better than the rest, because it took two men to compose her; Mariana was dreadfully proud of Wallace, and so on down the line, with Fra Diavolo, Faust, Carmen and the rest.

"Would you like to go through the city?" came a shrill voice. "Who said that?" asked Martha of Key of C.

"That is one of our citizens called High C. He can talk on no other note." "I would like very much to see your city," said Martha, "if there are as many pretty things there as here in the woods."

"Don't you insult our city that way." This was evidently said by Low G, as it had such a deep tone it frightened Martha considerably; she, however, apologized for insulting Operatown and begged him not to speak without letting her know beforehand. This he promised, and Martha, High C, Low G and Key of D all went to see the city.

CHAPTER II

There were many wonderful and beautiful things in Operatown. Indeed, there were so many it took nearly a week to see them all.

On the first day as they started out, High C said to Key D, "Let us go to Growlville Lake, where Miss Martha may bathe, and so be able to enter your staff."

"Agreed," was the reply.

Martha did not know why bathing in Growlville Lake would enable her to enter the Key of D's staff, but the rest of the party seemed to know, and she felt it would be impertinent to ask.

"There," thought she, "they are talking about that staff again. Impertinent or not, I will ask what it is." So aloud she said, "Will you tell me what your staff is?"

The Key of D was horrified at this question, while High C said, "What a simpleton!"

Low G had fallen in a faint at such ignorance, but Martha thinking he was dead, drew a sigh of relief, because his voice was gone.

"She will have to visit the Know-something Bird," said Key of C, "but first, let's take a plunge in Growlville Lake, it can make us no smaller."

"Agreed," said Key of D, as they all went bathing in Growlville Lake.

"Now," said Key of C, "When you get to be as little as we are, you must say, as old grandmother used to say, 'When you bathe in Growlville Lake, be sure to say, 'Growlville Lake, you've done your duty, or you'll keep getting smaller and smaller, until you'll just turn to water. So be careful to say that when you get as small as we are.'"

"Thank you, Mr. Key of C, I won't forget, but you never did tell me what your staff was."

The Key of C grew pale and said, "Hush, we will see the Know-something Bird, and he will tell you; we will go there as soon as we bathe."

"Agreed," said Key of D; so they all jumped in the lake and Martha had such a good time she forgot to say what they had told her, till finally, after growing smaller and smaller, she was turned into water and went rippling away with the rest of the lake water. The Key of C did not know what to do; all the Key of D could say was, "Agreed."

Low G and High C both fainted. For about one hour they sat, not knowing what to do, till "I know," said the Key of C; "I'll go to the Know-something Bird and ask him what to do."

"Agreed," said the Key of D, and off they set leaving High C and Low G fainting on the bank. And, Martha; Ah! where was she?

"Now," said the Key of C, "we will have many hardships to endure; let us promise each other to stay close together."

"Agreed," said the Key of D. Indeed, they did have hardships to endure, but each kept his promise, and because they loved Martha, they kept on their way and finally obtained the information they needed.

"I will look in my book," said the Know-something Bird, "for the leafy library. He soon returned and said, 'The wind voice of my old mother's grandfather's cousin whispered through the leaves of my library this rule: 'If anyone is lost in Growlville Lake, first throw a handful of nuts, shells and salt into the lake, second, get the Operatown Waterdrinker to drink up the lake, and lastly, gather up the nuts, shells and salt and put them back the water and the lost person will appear in any size wanted.'"

Key of C thanked the Know-something Bird, and started back. When they reached the lake they did as they had been told, and soon found to their joy Miss Martha beside them.

CHAPTER III

As soon as Martha was on the shore, she began to say, "Staff, staff, staff, won't you please tell me what a staff is?"

"Off to the Know-something Bird again," said Key of C.

"Agreed," said Key of D.

"If you please, Miss Martha, said Low G, 'I am going to speak.'"

Martha was frightened again, but since Low G had been so polite, she said nothing.

"Mr. Key of C," Low G continued, "I know of a Know-something Bird who lives near here."

"Well, then, Mr. Low G, we will go by your directions," said the Key of C.

"Agreed," said Key of D.

So they followed Low G and soon came to the house of the other Know-something Bird.

After listening to the whisperings of the leaves of his book, he admitted that he did not know what a staff was.

"But," said he, "I think I shall tell this little girl." So saying he picked up Martha in his claws and was about to put her in his mouth, when—"Wake up, Martha!" she opened her eyes and found herself still lying on the velvet carpet of the woods, with her mother standing over her.

"Mother," said she, "what is a staff?"

"A staff," said her mother, "is where the notes of music live."

"Well, I found out anyhow, even if the Know-something Bird wouldn't tell me," said Martha, as her mother took her by the hand and led her to the house with green blinds and a sloping roof.

CHAPTER I

WHEN men said that Luke Taylor was almost too lazy to draw his breath they were not exaggerating much. He was so lazy that he spent half his time in bed and the other half in eating and wishing he was rich. He was so ragged that people rooted at him, and if he ever started to use an axe or a hoe the handle was sure to break before he had been working ten minutes.

When men said that Luke Taylor's two boys, Joe and Tom, hadn't a lazy hair in their heads and deserved a better father, they were right. Joe was fourteen and Tom was twelve. They had been motherless lads for two years. Instead of their father keeping house for them, they kept it for him.

The three lived on a small farm about a mile from the village of Dalton, Pennsylvania. The house was in a wretched condition, the land out of cultivation on account of the father's laziness, and not even a chicken was to be found around the place.

The two boys had gone to the village school before their mother's death. After that there was work around the home for the younger one, while the elder earned what he could here and there.

The boys knew what folk thought of their father, but they treated him with respect and continued to do their best. He was never out of temper, and he never struck one of them a blow. When there was anything in the house to eat he would help to eat it; when there was not, he would turn over in bed and say:

"Well, my sons, I hope to have money some day, and we shall all be rich and can have what we wish. Tomorrow I will look around for work and bring home plenty to eat."

Among the men who used to tell Luke Taylor that he ought to be whipped for his laziness, and at the same time had words of praise and encouragement for his two boys, was Constable Johnson.

He was a man who was always charging those who broke the law, as it was his duty to do, but at the same time he had a kind heart and was a good neighbor. He also had a small farm, but it was a far different place from the other. It was on that farm that Joe earned many a dollar during the season of earning fifty cents a day, and Tom in the woods after roots and barks to sell to the village druggist, the Constable would drop in on the father and give him a lecture about his shiftlessness. It was always taken good-naturedly, but the man would say in his own defense:

"The fact is, I've got a sister in New Hampshire who is going to leave me a lot of money when she dies, and so there is no need of killing myself with hard work. If I don't get that money pretty soon, though, I must go to cutting wood for somebody. I can't have any saying I'm the laziest man in the State."

One day things came to an end. It was in the last days of September, and both the Taylor boys were cutting corn for Constable Johnson. There were many men out of work and anxious to be employed, but the big-hearted man wanted to help the boys along all he could.

He was working with them, when a man drove up in a light wagon and called him to the fence and talked to him for a few minutes. The boys kept on with their work, but after a bit the Constable called them to him and said:

"Boys, I have some bad news to tell you, but I hope you will not get excited over it."

"Is it about father, sir?" asked Joe. "It is. I am going home with you. It seems that he has hurt himself some way. We'll see how bad it is before we send for a doctor."

He had been told by the man who drove up that Luke Taylor was dead, but he did not want to tell the boys of their misfortune too suddenly. It seemed that the father had gone over to an old shed barn to pry off some of the boards for firewood. The building was so old and rickety that as he worked away it fell down on him, and he was fatally injured. His cries were heard, but before the beams and boards could be taken off he was dead.

Everybody stood back when the boys arrived and went in to grieve. He was a good father to them in all but shirking his work, and it was only natural that their hearts and eyes were full. So far as they knew, they had not another relative on earth. After the lapse of half an hour the Constable entered the house and said:

"Well, boys, we are all sorry for you, but you must be as brave as you can. You can go over to my house and stay all night, and we will see to things here. We shall bury him to-morrow."

Learning to Slide

Drawn by Henrietta Gavin, of New Albany

there was a funeral at which only half a dozen people were present, and when the body of the father had been laid away the Constable said to the boys: "You are to come home with me until I see what is to be done with you. Your father may not have told you, but I am sure he had a brother near Lancaster. That brother will be your uncle, of course, and it will be for him to take charge of you. I hope that he is a good man, and that he will give you both a good home."

Father's First Deer Hunt

FATHER was telling some of the adventures of his hunting days, and Robert was much interested.

"Did you ever go on a deer hunt, papa?" he asked.

"Lots of them," answered papa. "I remember very well the first deer hunt I ever went on. As a boy I used to see my father and his companions from the neighborhood bringing in venison steaks, antlers and hides, and as soon as I grew old enough to stand up under a gun I began to beg him to take me with him."

"I kept after him till I plagued the life out of him, and finally he consented to take me with him on a big deer hunt in the foothills of the Great Smoky range."

"I was a kind of favorite among the hunters, and they gave me a good stand on a big hillside. It was on the edge of a regular deer path, and any deer that might be 'jumped' was fairly certain to pass by me."

"I had been on my stand about an hour when I heard the hounds baying in the distance, and, judging by their loud yelp, it was very likely that they were on a fresh trail."

"The deer then would be in sight in a few minutes. I began to tremble with excitement."

"Sure enough a fine buck came straight up the path toward me, bounding twenty feet at every jump. I immediately set up a yell to the other hunters on stands near by to come a-running; here was the game. They did come a-running."

"Did you see the buck?" they asked. "He just now passed by me!" I said excitedly.

"Well, why didn't you shoot?" they demanded.

"I looked down at my gun. It was the first time I had thought of it. The hunters saw my face, then lay down on the ground and shouted with laughter. And that was the way I didn't kill my first deer."

AUTOMATIC MAN OF BERLIN.

The people of Berlin are being vastly entertained, and puzzled, too, just now by a wonderful automatic man. This figure does almost everything that a real man can do in the way of motion.

It can walk perfectly alone, sit, bow and jump. It can ride a bicycle as readily as if it were alive. Most remarkable of all, it can write its own name.

The amazing effect of all this is heightened by the fact that the inventor of the automatic man has dressed him in a strange garb and has given him a most grotesque head and face. The automatic man is exactly as tall as an average human being. He (or it) is made from 365 separate pieces.

The feet are iron and the legs are made of steel and wood. The arms are steel and copper. There are seven motors in the figure. Some of these are governed by electricity and other are electric. The two most powerful motors govern the legs and enable the automatic man to walk.

The electrical energy is supplied by fourteen accumulators of forty-eight volts power, which furnish 2,700 amperes in an hour.

When the automatic man is to walk, one motor pushes the left leg forward first. This makes the figure move toward the right, and the moment it does this, it causes quicksilver, which acts as the conductor for the electricity, to fly against a lever.

This forms a new electrical contact and the automatic man immediately regains his balance. The right foot moves forward, and the quicksilver promptly flies to the other side again, thus shifting the left foot forward once more.

In a similar way the apparatus produces the other motions, but as may be imagined, the mechanism governing the more intricate motions is immensely complicated. For instance, the mechanism that enables the figure to write its own name, "Enigmatischer," on a blackboard with chalk is so elaborate that it would require pages of technical description to explain it.

The inventor worked for many years before he finished his calculations and plans so that he could set to work to make the wonderful automatic man, and after his designs were all finished he had to work for many years before he could perfect the figure so that it would work.

CATCHING UP.

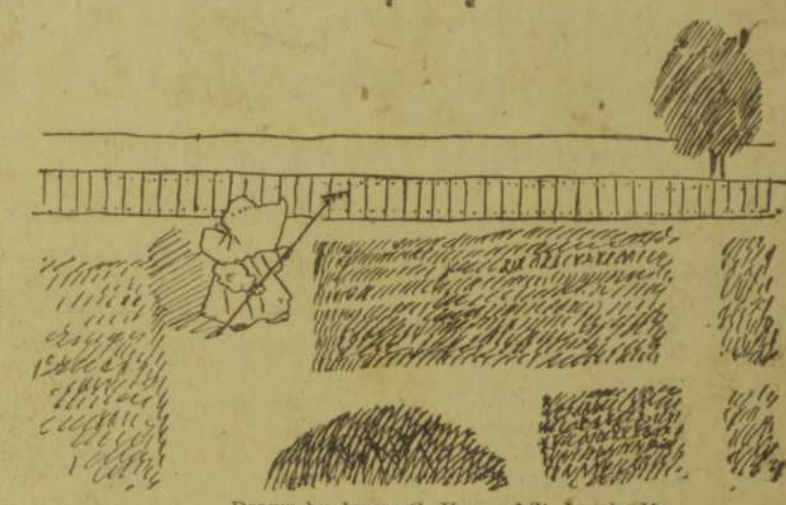

Tommy was playing in the yard with his bosom friend, Edgar, when he was called into the house by father and told that he now had a little sister, who had arrived the night before.

"Whoopie!" shouted Tommy, as he danced with joy. "Let me tell Edgar, quick!"

"What are you in such a hurry to tell Edgar for?" asked his father.

"Why," said Tommy, "yesterday I didn't have any sisters and Edgar was bragging 'cause he had two. And now I have 'most caught up with him already! Whoopie!"

The Whale-Killing Canoe of Skidgate.

GUNAN was the pretty little daughter of the Chief of Skidgate. One day when she went out with the women of the village to pick berries she upset her basket four times after she had almost filled it. "There!" said she, pettishly, "I'm not going to pick another berry. I am going home. And homeward she started alone, across the tundra land."

Soon she met a man and a woman of strange appearance, who stopped her and asked her who she was.

"My father is Chief of Skidgate," said the girl, proudly, "and he has a magic canoe which can eat up whales." "Oh, oh," said the man. "Is that so? I think I know that chief and that canoe." With that the woman snatched the girl and hurried through the woods, Gunan came to an inlet of the sea, and there, to her great joy, she saw her father in his magic canoe going toward the killer-whale village in search of his lost daughter.

The chief struck the edge of the canoe and it went out from the shore. He struck it again and it turned and went toward Skidgate. He did not have to paddle at all. But they had not gone far when they heard a great commotion behind them, and saw a great school of killer-whales coming after them.

Washington, May 12.—[Special.]—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, sprang a surprise on the Senate to-day and, if any proof were lacking, showed conclusively the details of the President's surrender on the Rate Bill to the Aldrich faction. When Senator Tillman first came to Washington William E. Chandler was a Senator from New Hampshire. Tillman, the Yankee hater, and Chandler, the Yankee, struck up an acquaintance which ripened into the closest friendship. They were almost inseparable and when the question of politics was not involved they never disagreed. Usually between politics and friendship they managed to vote together; at any rate they were never at variance as much as the record votes in the Senate would show. Frequently on the floor of the Senate they prodded each other unmercifully, but the Senate finally found them out and the retorts of the New Hampshire Senator and those of the South Carolinian were set down for nothing outside the stereotyped record.

A Bit of History.

Two months ago, when the railroad Senators turned over to Senator Tillman the management of the Rate Bill with the intention of making it adroit through Democratic support, the President, who was then in favor of railroad legislation which counted, found himself unable to communicate with the leader of the legislation which he had recommended to be placed upon the statute books. Four years ago the President had invited the South Carolinian to attend a dinner at the White House. The afternoon preceding the evening of the dinner Senator Tillman became involved in a personal encounter upon the floor of the Senate with his colleague, Senator McLaughlin. The President, who had looked upon McLaughlin as a possible agent in behalf of a Southern Republican, or a Roosevelt party, for Senator Hanna was then alive, immediately sided with McLaughlin and sent word to Senator Tillman revoking the dinner invitation. Senator Tillman never forgot the slight placed upon him and never again visited the White House.

Chandler a Mediator.

In casting around for some means of communicating with Senator Tillman, the name of Senator Chandler, now on the Spanish Claims Commission, was suggested to the President. He grasped it eagerly and a few days after Commissioner Chandler mentioned the matter to Senator Tillman, who put the necessity for railroad legislation over his personal feelings and consented to deal with the President through his personal friend, Mr. Chandler.

Later the Attorney General was brought into the conference, and that official drew up amendments as a basis of agreement, which had the approval of Senator Tillman as well as the President and his Attorney General. These amendments to the Hepburn Bill passed in the House provided for the narrow court review. Attorney General Moody wrote them himself, and in the Senate to-day Senator Tillman exhibited them. Senator Bailey, of Texas, who had been consulted by Senator Tillman upon every step of the proceeding, told the Senate of the negotiations, finally narrating the interview between him, Senator Tillman, the former Senator and the Attorney General the night after the President had called to the White House the newspaper correspondents upon whom he could depend to defend his compromise with the railroad Senators.

Attorney General Surprised.

The Attorney General expressed ignorance of the compromise. He was just hurriedly preparing to leave Washington on a short trip, and the intelligence brought him was the first information he had heard of the President's intention to repudiate his messages to Congress and speeches on the subject throughout the country. Naturally the disclosures of Senators Tillman and

Washington, May 12.—During the consideration of the Rate Bill in the Senate to-day Senator Tillman made an attack upon the President. He referred to the Long amendment, saying that he did so with the purpose of making an explanation. He said that Senators probably would be surprised to know that he had been in conference with the President. He then, contrary to his usual practice, read a statement of his negotiations regarding the bill as follows:

Mr. Tillman's Statement.

"On Saturday, March 31, I was informed by former Senator William E. Chandler that President Roosevelt had sent to him a note asking him to call at the White House that evening; that he had obeyed the call, and had been told by the President that he desired through him to get into communication with me as the Senator in charge of the Railroad Rate Bill, and with Senator Bailey, representing the Democrats in the Senate, for the purpose of ascertaining whether there could be such united action among the friends in the Senate of the Hepburn Bill as would make a majority in its favor and against injurious amendments. Mr. Chandler said the President named various Republican Senators who, he thought, were true friends of the bill, but said that it might require all the Democrats to defeat obnoxious amendments. Mr. Chandler said the President had stated that he had come to a complete disagreement with the senatorial lawyers, who were trying to injure or defeat the bill by ingenious constitutional amendments, naming Senator Knox, in addition to Senators Spooner and Foraker; that the President stated carefully and deliberately the basis upon which he thought there should be co-operation, viz., an amendment expressly granting a court review, but limiting it to two points; first, inquiry whether the commission had acted beyond its authority ultra vires, and, second, whether it had violated the constitutional rights of the carrier."

An "Unalterable" Decision.

"Mr. Chandler stated that the President repeated that he had reached a final decision that the right of review should be thus limited; that thus far he would go, and no farther; that his decision would be unalterable."

Proceeding, he said that Mr. Chandler had said that the President had assured him that he would be in favor of a restriction against the issuance of ex-parte injunctions to meet the wishes of Senators Tillman and Bailey.

After informing Mr. Bailey of the purport of the Chandler interview, Mr. Tillman said that on the next day he had told Mr. Chandler that in his and Mr. Bailey's opinion there would be no difficulty in coming to an understanding on the basis proposed by the President. "On the evening of Monday, Mr. Chandler told me he had so assured the President and asked him not to be disturbed by the newspaper items growing out of the talk about Senator Long's amendment published in the newspapers as one agreed upon at the White House conference on Saturday."

He then said that he and Mr. Chandler had continued their conferences and on April 5 the ex-Senator had gone to the White House to make a favorable report to the President. On April 8 Mr. Chandler told him that he had conferred with Senator Allison asking him to intervene in the conference then in progress and that the Iowa Senator had agreed to do so.

Meeting With Knox.

Later, Mr. Allison had seen the President. On April 13, Mr. Chandler had advised that he (Mr. Tillman) and Mr. Bailey see the Attorney General. Consequently, they had met that official on the 15th, finding themselves in perfect accord with him except as to a small difference in the matter of injunction. "There was absolute accord from the first on the proposition that court review should be limited to inquiry whether the commission had exceeded its authority or violated the carriers' constitutional rights," Mr. Moody had then agreed to supply the Senators with a memorandum of his views and had done so, "and we have the original of it," said Mr. Tillman.

The next day, Mr. Tillman said, he had seen Mr. Moody and had assured him that twenty-six Democratic votes could be secured for the compromise proposed and had told him that it would be necessary to get twenty Republican votes. "It was understood that we should work together to get the votes necessary to pass the compromise. The Attorney General had expressed doubt of getting enough Republican votes to assure the acceptance of the Bailey non-suspension provision, but said that he felt sure of the Overman amendment. Mr. Moody, he said, had assured him that it was the fixed purpose to insist upon the Long amendment and he (Mr. Tillman) had no suspicion of a change of front until May 4, when the President had his interview with the assembled newspaper men."

Statement Evokes Laughter.

The reading of the statement evoked many smiles and some laughter from Senators. There was especial merriment over a statement of assurance by the South Carolina Senator that the President need not be alarmed over newspaper reports. He had, he said, told the Attorney General that there was no danger of the result as to the bill, if the President should adhere to his plans.

He then had the clerk read the Moody memorandum covering the point agreed upon as the basis of amendments.

There was a slight stir in the Senate when Senator Dooliver took the floor. He said he would not speak if he had not been called as a witness by Mr. Tillman. He did not intend to speak, he said, but he could not forbear to say that Congress had spent nearly a year magnifying little questions and neglecting important matters of railroad legislation. He had endeavored to have action taken last Congress, but without success. He declared the pending bill had had much criticism from its friends as well as from its enemies. He referred to the discussion of constitutional questions, saying that the Senate was the last refuge of the technical lawyers. "The poor bill would have been entirely destroyed," he declared, "if the lawyers had not devoted so much time to one another. It was a perfect kiln-dried affair. These rival detective agencies of the law are about to be retired from business by the prospect of the passage of the bill."

Dooliver Praises President.

He was glad that the President had taken a hand and shown himself a leader—the most superb moral leadership the American people have had. "Mr. Allison he said: 'He has been my guide and counselor ever since I have been engaged in considering this question.' Mr. Allison had been for more than thirty years engaged in the public service and he (Mr. Dooliver) did not propose to sit silent and hear the charge made that he had been trapped into doing something that he did not understand. He declared that while not a constitutional lawyer, Mr. Allison was a broader and better comprehension of legislation than any other man of the present generation. Mr. Dooliver asserted that the only effect of the Allison amendment would be to put affirmatively in the bill what was already in it. Nor did he believe the President had been misled, for he also was surrounded by constitutional lawyers, 'legal sharpshooters if you will.' He had no question, therefore, of the soundness of the new propositions and he was willing to accept them."

Clapp Defends Roosevelt.

Senator Clapp also defended the President against aspersion, saying he had achieved the greatest of all the many victories that have since been won as an ideal American citizen. He also contended that the right to go into the courts under the Constitution had always been in the bill. He prophesied that when the hysteria of the hour should have passed away it would be found that in the end the President had been right. He prophesied that there had been no change. True, the President might have kept aloof, but that would have been a cowardly position, inconsistent with his character. Also he might have taken a position for the House Bill, but that, too, would have been inconsistent. Either course might have brought more favor, but the President had not considered that feature and had taken a firm position, standing the greatest of all tests—that of being greater than self.

Mr. Lodge gave the general outline of the Long amendment, saying that it had been prepared in conference with Senator Allison, and that at first it was in the language of the Allison amendments. He had sought to do nothing more of Senate character than to confer in the courts, and he was not opposed to defining that jurisdiction.

Later, in conjunction with other Senators, Mr. Lodge said he had considered the Allison amendment. That provision was, he said, entirely satisfactory to him, and he did not consider it essentially different from his own amendment.

The G. O. P. United.

"It is very evident that the grand old party is united," said Mr. Tillman, that ended the very interesting scene. During the adoption of the final Allison amendment some time after Senator Tillman had completed his statement, Mr. Lodge came into the Senate chamber. He said he had not heard Mr. Tillman but that he had read portions of his statement. He said he could hardly believe that part in which ex-Senator Chandler was quoted by Mr. Tillman as saying that the President said he had "come to a complete disagreement with senatorial lawyers, mentioning Senators Knox, Spooner and Foraker. Senator Lodge, continuing, said he had gone to the Senate chamber and had heard Mr. Tillman, and had called upon the White House to the attention, that being the most rapid way of reaching the President.

President Was Angry.

"I read the sentence to the President," said Senator Lodge, "and he said in reply that the statement which I read to him attributed to him by Mr. Chandler, was a deliberate and unqualified falsehood; that Senator Foraker's name was never mentioned at all in the conversation; that Senator Spooner's name was only mentioned by him to express a cordial approval of Senator Spooner's amendment. As to Senator Knox, he said that he did not agree with a portion of his proposed amendment, but thought that he made a very strong argument for granting affirmatively the jurisdiction or authority of the court. 'I think, Mr. President,' continued Mr. Lodge, 'that it is a mere act of justice to allow this statement to go out with that which was said and attributed to the President.'"

CLAY AND VERY COMMON AT THAT

Predicts Presidential Reply.

"I did not cross-question in regard to the statement made by the Senator from South Carolina, for I did not hear the statement myself, and the President has not said a word of it. I imagine to-morrow that when he has read the statement in full he will make reply which will satisfy the curiosity of the Senator from Texas."

"It is not a matter of curiosity," responded Mr. Bailey. He explained that it was the duty of the President to hold conferences, and that also ought to go into the record, because he took it that the Senator from South Carolina was just as willing as the Senator from Massachusetts that the President of the United States should have the full benefit of the truth. "I think it also important," he continued, "for those on this side, who had no communication, to know whether an ex-member of this body assumed an authority not granted to him."

Mr. Lodge made the remark in closing that it must be obvious to the Senator from Texas, from what he (Lodge) had read, that the President admits fully that he had a conversation with ex-Senator Chandler on the subject, "as he has had with dozens and scores of Senators of both parties in this chamber."

POPULAR PARIS COUPLE TO MARRY IN LEXINGTON.

Paris, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—The marriage of Clarence Ashurst and Miss Rosa May Freeman, both of Paris, will take place on Wednesday, May 16, at 7 o'clock p. m., at Lexington, Ky. The bride is a niece of the late J. C. Freeman and the prospective groom is a son of George H. Ashurst, a popular young business man. The ceremony will be Miss Sadie Aker, of Lexington, and John Ashurst and Sol Rodman, of Paris. After the ceremony the pair will leave for a Southern trip.

SEEK TO HARMONIZE LUMBER SPECIFICATIONS.

Minneapolis, May 12.—An important conference of the big lumber manufacturing associations of the Southern, Western and Northern States was held in the office of the Northern Pine Manufacturers' Association to-day. The meeting sought to harmonize specifications for the various grades of lumber by adopting a uniform nomenclature. In other words the Pacific coast lumber manufacturers will no longer have to call an inch board of a certain grade one thing on the coast and another thing in Minneapolis or St. Louis.

Raise Oldham County.

Frankfort, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—The State Board of Equalization passed on the following counties: Oldham lands and personalty were raised 10 per cent, and town lots 2 per cent. In Russell and Spencer the assessments of the county board were accepted.

Yale's Marksmen Win.

New Haven, Conn., May 12.—Yale's marksmen won the intercollegiate shoot against the University of Pennsylvania in the office of the Northern Pine Manufacturers' Association to-day. Scores: Yale, 22; University of Pennsylvania, 19; Princeton, 18; Harvard, 17.

the subject of suspension of rates pending a reversal by the courts.

Roosevelt Silent In Campaign.

Taking up a statement made by Senator Carter that the President had during his campaign for the Presidency displayed matchless courage in defying the railroad power of the country, Senator Bailey said of the President's attitude in that election: "Has the Senator from Montana examined the record on that question. As he does in the record of the Senator from Maryland and myself? What will the Senate say when I tell the Senator from Montana that in his message in 1902 and 1903, the President was as silent as the grave upon the question of regulating the railroads; that, standing in the presence of the American people pending the great contest of 1904 he spoke never a word in his favor, either in his letter of acceptance or in his speech of acceptance."

"Only after his election in 1904 did he challenge the railroad powers in mortal combat. Did the Senator from Montana know that when he declared that the President has exhibited the marvelous courage in defying it prior to election?"

Senator Carter replied that in a public address delivered in the city of Minneapolis before his nomination, the President had announced his position upon the subject, and likewise upon necessary anti-trust prosecutions and legislation. In reply Senator Bailey said he did not know the President had discussed the railroad question in his speech in Minneapolis, but he had examined the President's public messages prior to the election and had found nothing of that character in them.

A Promise Not Redeemed.

Senator Bailey said that the President's secretary had written to the editor of a publication known as "Freight" in the summer of 1904, declaring that in his letter of acceptance the President "would speak out" on the railroad question. He said the President's promise had not been redeemed.

"I do not say that the President put it in his letter, and then when his astute political advisers told him that the railroads would not contribute that he cut it out. I will not say that although there are many men uncharitable enough to say it, I only put before the Senate and the country the fact that his secretary said the President would speak on it, and he did not speak on it."

"Perhaps these insurance companies which were contributing the funds of widows and orphans to secure his election, owned so many of those railroad bonds that they deterred not the President, but the President's advisers from incorporating in his letter a message of hostility against the railroads preceding the election."

Gives Up With Alacrity.

"Mr. President, I love a brave man. I love a fighter, and the President of the United States is both on occasion, but he can give up with as much alacrity as any man who ever went to

KENTUCKIANS SHOT IN FREIGHT CAR

JACK RICHARDSON, OF LEXINGTON, KILLED.

NIGHT WATCHMAN AT CHATTA-NOOGA FIRES SHOTS.

DANVILLE MAN WOUNDED.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 12.—Herb Cornelson, of Danville, Ky., was shot and Jack Richardson, of Lexington, Ky., killed in a merchandise car of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific in the Cincinnati Southern freight yards here at 3 o'clock this morning by one of the road's watchmen, who must have fired at least six shots.

The dead man and his companion were both young white men and evidently railroad men. On the person of Cornelson was found a loaded revolver, none of the charges of which had been fired. He was shot in three places. Richardson was killed by a bullet in the head. The coroner is making an investigation to determine the identity of the watchman who did the shooting.

HAD ROVING DISPOSITION.

Cornelson Known In Danville As Upright Young Man.

Danville, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Herbert Cornelson, who was shot last night in Chattanooga, was a resident of Danville until last Sunday. He was formerly a resident of Jamestown, Ind., where his mother and other relatives now live. He left here for Chattanooga in search of work. While in Danville he lived with his cousin, J. A. Helm. He was considered an upright and honorable young man while in Danville, but had a roving disposition, having lived in many different sections.

NOT KNOWN IN LEXINGTON.

Only Jack Richardson Still Alive and Well.

Lexington, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Only one Jack Richardson is known in Lexington. He lived here for many years, and is related to many of the most prominent families in the Bluegrass region. He is now engaged in the hardware business at Nicholasville, and a telephone message revealed that he was alive and well. The police here believe the man killed was simply a tramp, and it was by some accident that his residence was given as Lexington, Ky.

Order Courthouse Dismantled.

Central City, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—The Fiscal Court of Muhlenberg county to-day authorized the dismantling of the old courthouse, but failed to provide funds with which to build a new one.

The Buffalo Racing Association has announced a number of stakes to be run at the coming summer meeting at beautiful Kenilworth Park, Buffalo, entries to which will close at midnight of Wednesday, May 16, 1906. The principal feature is the Buffalo Derby, for now three-year-olds, to be run on May 22, at 1:30 p. m. The conditions do not prescribe penalties, but there are allowances ranging from four pounds for nonwinners of $2,000 in 1905 to twenty-one pounds to which maidens are entitled.

Three stakes are grouped under the name Niagara series handicaps for three-year-olds and upwards. The first is guaranteed value of $2,500. They are by subscription of $5 each, which entitles the entrant to start in each of the three handicaps, and also entitles all entries to be handicapped free for all overnight handicaps during the season, thus saving declaration fees. The series consists of the Cataract, one mile and a sixteenth, guaranteed value $1,500; the Rapids, one mile and forty yards, value $1,000; and the Whirlpool, one mile, value $1,000. The other fixtures are the International handicap, six furlongs, guaranteed value $1,000; the Independence, one mile and a furlong, guaranteed value $1,000; the Ontario handicap, five and a half furlongs, value $1,000. The above are all for three-year-olds and upwards. The Bloon City, selling, is for three-year-olds and upwards, and has a guaranteed value of $1,000. There are three stakes for two-year-olds, namely, the Froquois, at five furlongs, value $1,000; the Genesee, selling, five furlongs, value $1,000; and the Mohawk, for fillies and geldings, four and a half furlongs, value $1,000. In addition to these events in the flat, there are three fixtures for the steeplechase division. They are the Lockport, value $700 over the short course; the Hamilton, value $1,000, full course; and the Toronto, value $1,000, full course. The Kenilworth meeting follows immediately after the great Toronto meeting of this season, and the meeting of eleven days at Hamilton, and introduces racing on the second circuit under the auspices of the Jockey Club. It begins Monday, June 4, and continues until Saturday, July 7, and is immediately followed by the meeting at Fort Erie, which gives promise of being the best meeting ever held at the Canadian course. Horsemen who make it Kenilworth will thus have an opportunity to put in more than a month's racing. Buffalo, one of the most delightful places in America in the summer.

Yale Defeats Princeton.
New Haven, Conn., May 12.—Yale had an easier time than was anticipated in winning the dual athletic meet with Princeton this afternoon, the final score being 74 to 24 points. Princeton proved weak in the field events, but had a good hurdler in Armstrong, who won both high and low hurdles with comparative ease. Two records were bettered in the pole vault and the running broad jump. In the sprint the Yale men mostly raced among themselves and Yale's distance men proved more than a match for Princeton. Summaries:

80-yard dash—Won by Moore, Yale; second, Dixon, Yale; third, Swin, Princeton. Time, 1:30.5.

100-yard dash—Won by Armstrong, Princeton; second, Hill, Yale; third, Eals, Yale. Time, 1:20.5.

200-yard dash—Won by White, Yale, 41 feet 10 inches; second, Abbott, Yale, 38 feet 11 inches; third, Buchanan, Yale, 31 feet 8 inches.

High Jump—Won by Marshall, Yale, height, 5 feet 11 1/2 inches; second, Simon, Yale, 5 feet 7 1/2 inches; third, Tooker, Princeton, 5 feet 7 1/2 inches.

Brook Jump—Won by Sheffield, Yale, 22 feet; second, Knox, Yale, 22 feet 10 inches; third, Simons, Princeton, 22 feet.

Two-mile Run—Won by Hall, Yale; second, Woodward, Yale; third, Porter, Yale.

100-yard dash—Won by L. K. Robinson, Yale; second, G. Butler, Yale; third, Hinton, Yale. Time, 1:10.5.

Points—Yale 71, Princeton 1.

One Mile Run—Won by W. J. L'Egley, Yale; second, Scudder, Yale; third, Kelly, Princeton. Time, 4 minutes and 34.4 seconds.

Points—Yale 14, Princeton 2.

140-yard Dash—Won by W. T. Cochran, Hinton, Yale; second, F. Ewing, Yale; third, Towler, Princeton. Time, 51 seconds.

Points—Yale 21, Princeton 2.

Cincinnati, May 12.—Devlin's wild throw, saving Schief, Hagman's sacrifice and Barry's single gave Cincinnati the winning run in the eleventh inning. McGraw and McGraw were put off the field for disputing decisions. Delahanty was hit under the eye by a foul tip off his own bat in the tenth inning and was forced to retire from the game. McGraw was responsible for both runs scored by New York.

TEBEAU'S MEN LOSE ANOTHER

Millers Outth and Outfield Team From Falls City.

BUNCH HITS IN TWO INNINGS.

Brashers, Quinlan and Kerwin Do Principal Stick Work For the Colonels.

THOMAS PITCHES IN FORM.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 12.—Tebau's fast-flying baseball squadrons received another setback today in the game of percentage-making, when the Millers carried them over the jumps to slow motion. It took just two innings to make things look easy for the men with Minneapolis on their shirts, and from then until the finish there was practically no doubt of the result. The final reckoning was 8 to 3 in favor of the locals.

The Colonels failed to accomplish anything in the first, and the Millers sent one into counting territory. The Tribe of Tebeau evaded up in the second, but the blow-up followed quickly. The Millers got fire in their eyes when they picked up the big stick in the second, and before the Colonels could deliver the necessary trio of goose eggs, three of the husky home boys had traveled across the plate to safety.

There was not much doubt after this, but the Millers annexed one more in the fifth and three more in the sixth, just to make things look certain. The visitors negotiated one tally in the seventh, but it was a consolation prize.

Stecher pitched a good game, but the hits came at opportune moments, and this fact coupled with the other fact that the Colonels were unable to plant their brooms on the plate without interference.

The Colonels were unable to connect with anything like disastrous effect with Thomas' benders.

Tommy Green made one of the long hits of the game, a pretty three-bagger, and the Colonels were unable to connect with anything like disastrous effect with Thomas' benders.

The statement that the combined properties will have a gross earning power of over $4,000,000 in the first year of the reorganization is significant, and with Clark methods applied to the management of the various properties excellent results would seem to be assured. Show That the Company Certainly Means Business.

They have a large number of men working on their property, clearing and grading the same, and they will then lay the rails for the Railroad to connect with the AERIAL TRAM, which the Trenton Iron People, of Trenton, N. J., are NOW constructing for the above Company. When this RAILROAD and TRAM are completed, their will not be a share of this stock for sale on the market, for the company is only placing a small block of this stock for the purpose of completing the above mentioned contracts. Once this Railroad and Tram are completed, the Company will then be in a position to ship over 100 tons per day and the dividend from same will be such that it will be an utter IMPOSSIBILITY to purchase a share of this stock; as the value and quantity of the ore are such that it will prove one of the largest paying mines in the West. An investigation on the part of the public will bring forth the fact that this is NOT a FAKE mining proposition, but a FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT, and a call at 246 Fifth Ave. will convince one that the purchase of this stock is a BARGAIN at ANY price.
